FOR WHOM

THE BELLS TOLL

NOT BY BREAD ALONE

How do I love thee? Let me count the ways . . . with mushrooms, onions, pepperoni and extra cheese — from Nick's, Peter's, Bertucci's, Danny's, ABC . . . Maybe I'll have a MacAttack if there's time and Sidney will let me out. I know Mom made me a sandwich with last night's leftovers and I'm just not up for meatloaf. Think I'll stash it in my locker with last week's tuna and that old peanut butter and jelly job that's beginning to smell like my sneakers.

Of course, there's always "caf" food which might not be a bad idea if I can get there early enough and if it's Deli Day. Let's face it, at this point I'm so hungry that I just love lunch — any lunch at all. Maybe even the meatloaf.

Food always draws a crowd. (J. Delude, L. Fitzsimmons, J. Parker, L. Hunt, M. Steere, J. Crowley)

Some like it hot.
(Lisa Kerchner, Alan Steere)

FREE AT LAST, FREE AT LAST!

There's a certain sense of liberation that comes with the close of the school day, whether that be at the end of seventh period or eighth. Those taking electives during the eighth period might dash down to Campus Treasures to get soda and some food to energize them through the last hour. For those serving Detention, well there's an air of resignation in the Science Lecture Hall as students settle in for the duration. The majority of students, however, find themselves heading for sports, jobs, drama or music activities, or just hangin' out. This time slot between school and dinner time tends to be the most cherished, even if it's used just to relax and "veg" or to do homework. There's a real need for breathing room in the human psyche, so we joyfully call, "Goodbye, Mr. Chips."

"Whatever we decide to do, we're doing it together."
(L. Kanevsky, M. Miller, K. Jackson, L. Castellano)

LOVE THAT LEISURE

Remember the Friday night football game at Natick? How about the wonderful weekend at your friend's beach house . . . or the volleyball carwash you worked where you were scrubbed cleaner than most of the cars? There were hikes and dances, and a variety of sporting events and dates. (Oh, what an assortment those came in!) There were the adorable children you babysat for, the journeys to your favorite pizza parlor, and, of course, an evening of video here and there: Pretty Woman, Bull Durham, and Total Recall, being among the favorites with a classic like Casablanca or It's a Wonderful Life thrown in for good measure. Trips into Faneuil Hall or Harvard Square were great adventures, but perhaps the greatest moments of all were quiet gatherings of your favorite people who had the time to be mellow together. Weekends rule!

"We love New Hampshire!" (A. Pribaz, H. Kuske, K. Fitzsimmons, H. Kuske, J. Montgomery, M. Steere, L. Fitzsimmons)

A slice of life.

"We must go down to the sea again . . ." (G. Donovan, L. Joseph, D. Warren, M. Faubert, P. J. Joseph, M. Harrington, S. Doorley)

"So, how are the Sox doing?"
(M. DeFazio, G. Echard, G. Lichter, M. Wolf)

"We made it up the mountain." (L. Messina, A. Beals, H. Boyle, C. Quinn, J. Carroll)

"Did anyone bring food?"
(Anne O'Brien and friends)

THE MASQUES OF THE RAIDERS

News flash! Wellesley High was invaded by costumed freaks on October 31. No, this is not an attempt to recreate the panic caused by Orson Welles' rendition of War of the Worlds, but . . . well, the seniors really lost it. Whether it was the influence of a full moon, or as one guidance counselor suggested, the pressure of applying to schools, the poor souls just weren't themselves. They arrived in assorted forms and garb. Parents dropping off students looked on in amazement at the eclectic group of bizarre individuals heading inside. One onlooker was quoted as saying,

"Why can't they just go to the Atrium Mall and buy some clothes?"

Katie Civetta had a great deal of difficulty driving with her new corpulent body, and the transvestite cheerleaders had other problems. Mr. Vasaturo worried about the effect the seniors were having on the Child Lab children, who copied their role models and arrived at school in forms ranging from Ninja Turtles to Cookie Monsters. However the event is explained, the UST's (Unidentified Senior Things) must have had fun.

THE CALL OF THE WILD

"We are the Seniors
We are the best
We'll be number one
Above all the rest!"

Thus chanted the scarlet clad senior women as they made the rounds of the underclass sections of the stands during the traditional fall pep rally. Having put most of their efforts into the multiple verse lyrics, what they may have lacked in choreography, they more than made up for with exuberance.

High spirits prevailed as our Bay State League Championship winning swim team entered the gym, cheering the football team, and the captains of the various fall sports reported on the results of their efforts. Many success stories were told.

Although the cheerleaders' music failed them, cutting their routine short, they still had time to awe the crowd with their dancing and gymnastics and a very impressive pyramid.

"If they don't win, it won't be our fault."

"Our team did very well."
(Pam Poltras and Jill Croke)

THE RED AND THE BLACK

Crisp red apples and leaping flames in a fireplace hail the arrival of fall. Red football uniforms, scarlet cheerleaders, and brilliantly painted Senior Women dot the traditional Wellesley Thanksgiving landscape.

Graduates return for nostalgic visits with friends they haven't seen for awhile, but who can be counted on not to miss this holiday happening. The game provides a community focus, an extended "family" that enriches a holiday season. This festive air heightened the anticipation and excitement of the climax to the football season as Wellesley squared off against arch rival Needham.

With the Senior Women attempting to lead cheers at halftime (until the Needham band took over the field) Wellesley enthusiasm helped carry the day. When the Tale of Two Cities was told, Wellesley had emerged victorious with a 16-3 win over Needham.

T HE PEAK OF SUCCESS

It drew rave reviews — and it deserved to. Fiddler on the Roof was a polished production that the performers could be proud of, and the rest of the community could savor. The spillover effect of its success made everyone feel good.

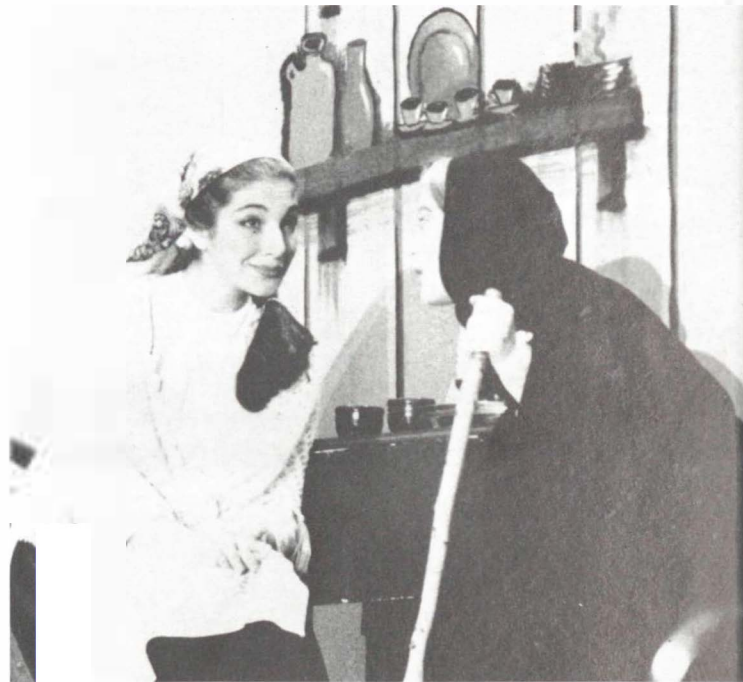

The performers were quick to point to Carol Devendorf as a key ingredient in the accomplishment and all agreed the feeling among cast members was that of a family working together. No one felt the need to be a star.

When asked the secret of feeling comfortable in the roles they played, the actors confided that they tended to pattern a character along the lines of someone they knew. Why not? After all, "All the world's a stage . . .".

DECK THE HALLS . . .

Add a band with a wide selection of music, provide dessert and punch, glamorously attired guests, the charming Wellesley College setting and you have the Cotillion, the traditional touch of elegance for juniors and seniors.

Arriving in groups of six to twelve, some in chauffeured limousines, the guests had generally begun their evening at dinner in a restaurant or at a house party. Initially there was some tension as guests worried whether they would handle the receiving line niceties well. Dora Tavel felt the urge to sing Eric Clapton's "I Feel Wonderful Tonight," and the band's rendition of "Stairway to Heaven" was such a hit, it was repeated by popular demand.

The splendidly attired group included some couples who were surprising matches, but most were not. Brian Mullaney was with Eileen Riley, Tory Nehr with John Walsh, Chris McCauley with Missy Medoff, Paul Joseph with Alexis Kissam and Ken Kavanaugh with Lara Grant.

RISKY BUSINESS

It was perfect, a ski weekend in New Hampshire at King Pine. No parents, all seniors and two chaperons. We were off. Most cars left around 4 p.m., as the weekend of fun was about to begin or was it? Those great directions led many to Maine, Vermont and various other places except the right one, but finally we all got on track and met up at the King Pine Resorts.

Fun was a major key to this trip; not only was time used to go skiing and sledding, but also to sit around and shoot the breeze with fellow classmates. Everyone said the skiing was great and those that didn't ski went sledding. Those non-skiers used more than just inner-tubes to go sledding. A few used toilet seat covers and one person went to the extreme of using a shower door. But all in all, it was a great weekend that will definitely never be forgotten.

We're off to see the wizard . . .

BACK TO THE BEACH

Since all work and no play makes Jack and Jill dull boys and girls, they left their classrooms to head for the hills. Oh, the places they went; whether to surf or to ski, they got there fast and then they took it slow. For many, vacation had begun before the close of school, as their thoughts meandered towards their destinations. Finally, their bodies and spirits were allowed to follow, and with the glee and exuberance of youth, they found their happy havens in the sand and on the slopes.

For some, vacation was a time to experience new things and make new friends. For others it was a restful opportunity to unwind and to enjoy the great outdoors. Whatever the excuse, vacation was a universal delight.

C LASSIC JOKE

The classic joke, when we arrived in September, was the institution of a new Home Period. It consisted of mixed home rooms ranging from grades 9-12 where students were supposed to bond and do something constructive. However, this was not to be. The majority of the students disliked this activity because it seemed completely pointless. The students had a chance to attack it at an all school student caucus. Changes had to be made and they were. Shortly after the start of the second semester, students were given a chance to choose from a variety of activities. These activities included such things as Senior Homeroom and SADD, all the way to the Bridge Club or Yoga. Needless to say, the Homeroom Period was one of the most controversial issues dealt with this year.

Junior class president Tim Dowling, along with the other officers, Travis Cundiff, Eileen Riley and Alex Danovitch, helped to raise three thousand dollars. The sophomore officers, Aysha Sheikh, Nigam Shah, Carlos Kase and Nicole Hirsch, achieved another profitable year. Freshman officers, Beth Kerchner, Heather Weiner, Liz Stam and Shannon Toomey, began their high school years well. All three classes held a variety of fundraisers as well as formals that were enjoyed by all who participated.

THE PERSIAN GULF WAR

At 7 p.m. on January 16, President Bush ordered the "liberation of Kuwait." Most people who were at home spent the evening glued to the TV set watching the marathon newscasts of the unfolding drama. Mid-year exams were postponed the next day due to the fact that academics were the last thing on anybody's mind. Mr. Murphy gave his view of the situation that morning at an all school assembly in the auditorium. Afterwards, all were dismissed.

Feelings about the war were mixed in the school. Some were very much in favor of it, while others staged peace vigils in Wellesley center. The yellow ribbon became a sign of support for the troops involved and nearly every street was decorated with them. The resounding success of the allied forces caused patriotism to soar throughout the country. Many athletic teams put the American flag on their uniforms. Cars and other items were also decorated.

It was a stressful time for all of us, especially those who had loved ones serving. We all hope that a lasting peace in the volatile Middle East may now be achieved.

A common symbol throughout America.

*Today, the road all runners come,
Shoulder high we bring you home,
And set you at your threshold down,
Townsmen of a stiller town.

From fields where glory does not stay.*

C LASSIC EXCUSES

Tomorrow and tomorrow, and tomorrow . . . and before long, they're all used up. The assignment is due Today. Wellesley students have learned from the classics. They realized Julius Caesar ran into all kinds of trouble when he didn't invent a clever excuse for not going to the Senate, so they aren't as reticent to justify their actions or lack thereof. If creativity should elude them at key moments, they have been known to dust off one of these heirlooms and try it out. We apologize to the models for these relics, and assure the reader that the people pictured here would never be caught shirking their duties.

Expectations

"The more things change, the more they stay the same." This year the English Department changed drastically for juniors and seniors. Instead of the previous elective courses, students took a year-long comprehensive class. These classes, however, have incorporated successful topics from the elective program. For instance, taking a major theme from "Comedy and Tragedy," Mr. McCormick's senior classes have had a year-long battle of the sexes. The war in the gulf initiated some serious class discussions of the Vietnam War. A senior paper based on students' individual interests was a productive way to end the year.

As for the interdisciplinary writing lab, a treasure now housed in the library, — Write on!

... And then there were none. No more department head for Math. It has been a struggle this year due to school-wide cuts and problems. Dr. Rumsey, who heads up this department as well as Science and Industrial Technology, has been doing an excellent job, but the workload makes an ideal situation impossible. The cuts in staff do not reflect a lack of enthusiasm for the subject, for enrollment figures are very high. Some students even opt to take more than one math course a year. Suggestions for strengthening the department include standardizing policies on programs and on the use of calculators. The extra work involved in presenting a quality program with a shrinking staff reflects the tenor of these hard times.

The history department, headed by Mr. Whitbeck, had a most exciting year since world events were developing at such a rapid pace. The decline of the economy and glasnost made issues in his Soviet Union Class more complex and required restructuring of the course material. Students had the opportunity to discuss openly the news of the day and gain insight into a culture and way of life so different from their own. The staff will miss the wit and wisdom of Mr. Whittaker who ends his thirty year teaching career in June.

Science students didn't worry about the Ides of March. They found the month a very exciting one. The Science Olympiad ended a very successful season by competing in the State Meet at Boston University, while over one hundred students participated in the Science Fair. Their projects ranged from a mechanical hydraulic hand to an electro-chemistry experiment.

While the students were busy winning awards, the staff was involved in a curriculum review process and making decisions to implement more computer use, particularly in the physics courses. During the summer of 1991, major renovations will be made to the existing science wing and the staff will be busy packing boxes in June in anticipation of new classrooms and labs for September.

Foreign language students are finding their programs more directed toward a conversational approach, especially in Spanish. Those participating in exchange trips certainly appreciate this. Although concerns over the safety of travelers during the Persian Gulf War cancelled the exchange to Paris, eight students from France visited us in April, just as our Spanish students left for Costa Rica. The traditional summer German exchange is proceeding as planned. The fun of this subject is clearly recognized by those students who even elected to pursue it during a Home Period in the form of French games or a foreign language club or activity.

From Mrs. Fiske and Co. giving advice in the Writing Lab, to the librarians suggesting you "get something to do, and please, kids, only four to a table," the library has always been more than just a place to do research. While freshmen and sophomores try to escape "quiet" study halls, juniors and seniors carry on sometimes hushed conversations to the dismay of the staff. Yet, when it comes to a last minute project or a burning desire for knowledge, students appreciate the information available in the facility and the dedication and expertise of the librarians. From the time we were wide-eyed freshmen seeking books on subjects ranging from the Romans to Victorian England, we knew we had access to enthusiastic help. If "a little knowledge is a dangerous thing," this staff works hard to ensure our safety.

One look at the display case on the first floor will show you what artistic talent lurks in the classrooms of W.H.S. The mediums may change, but the caliber stays the same — impressive. From pen and ink to water color and oil, imaginative and sometimes whimsical pictures decorate the corridor.

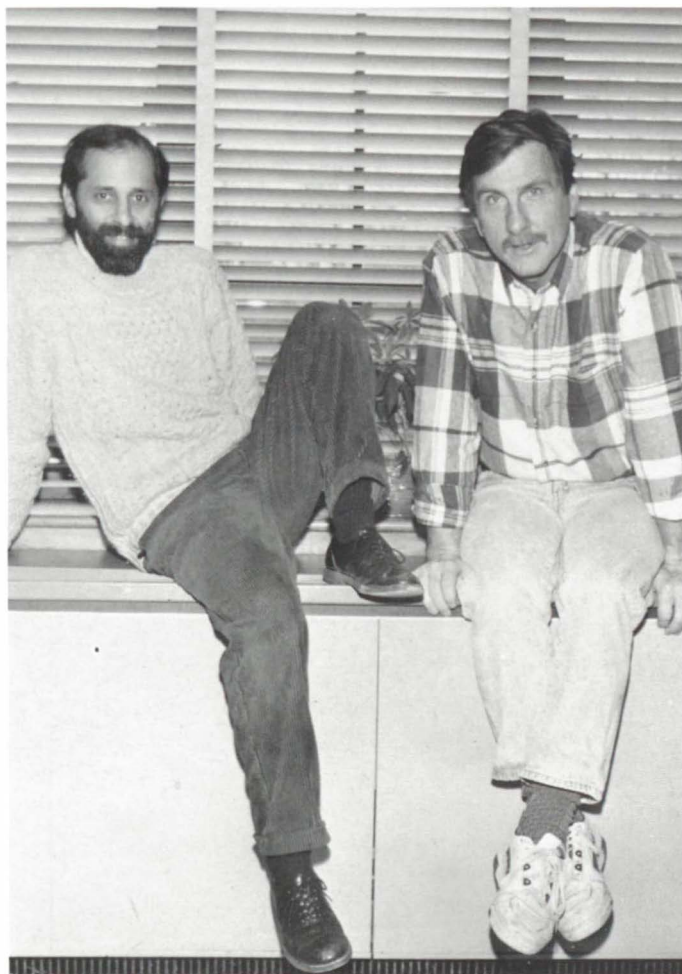

Occasionally students can be seen carrying pots of clay with the care usually reserved for a Ming vase. The antiquity may be missing, but the beauty is there.

And the bracelet you're admiring on the wrist of the person next to you? That might not be a month's allowance spent at DePrisco's, but time spent in jewelry making — time well spent.

If you feel "there's no business like show business," then give in to the urge to perform. Graceful ballerinas and modern dance ensembles meld with great band music and a variety of vocal groups. The improv artists frequently provide humor while the cast of productions such as Fiddler on the Roof give us very polished finished pieces that make us very proud. W.H.S. walked off with honors for individual performances at the Drama Festival. With so many outlets for talent, there's no excuse for a frustrated performer at W.H.S. Get out and share your talent . . . after all, you can't take it with you.

Diversity is the key to this department's success. It counts among its products the yearbook, the video yearbook, and Campus Treasures, a flourishing small business which netted over $3,000 for the first half of the year. Courses range from keyboarding and computer applications; desktop publishing that has been recognized for excellence by Apple Corporation; to computerized accounting, a course offered by only five schools in the state. Mrs. Lord's Business Administration program, with GTE as its corporate sponsor, organized their own company called BAJA. The commitment to relevant interdisciplinary education is evident on the part of Coordinator, Miss Copell, as she has initiated a Creative Writing/Desktop Publishing course taught by Mrs. Dixon and the community technology courses offered to adults and elementary students.

Talk about a program where you can "have your cake and eat it too." Home Ec has a class for everyone. There are opportunities for developing practical skills, like sewing, or cooking with Mrs. Gorman, or gaining parenting pointers in Ms. Ritter's Child Lab where you also have the chance to be a kid again with the pre-schoolers. Just ask Pam Poitras, the student teacher in charge of the little people, what a great program this is. "These courses are a nice break from academics and give immediate results: an original design prom dress perhaps, or cookies, turnovers, muffins . . ." It's surprising how many friends you have when you're leaving the home ec room with a bag full of delectable treats. And guess whose parents were the proud recipients of a surprise handmade quilt for their anniversary?

Will Dacey gives a critical eye to the project.

How does an idyllic vacation house tucked in the mountains sound? Well, if you were in Mr. McAleer's architectural drawing course, you could design it and draw the plans, and then in the carpentry course, you could learn how to put it together. If you weren't thinking on such a grand scale, you might create a Victorian dollhouse for a favorite sister or a mother who collects miniatures.

If you should decide on that mountain retreat, and you were to develop engine trouble enroute, you could probably handle that too if you were a product of the automotive program. You might even build one of those miniature cars to challenge the winners of the Home Period derby.

INDUSTRIAL TECHNOLOGY

"Now watch your fingers, guys." (Mr. McAleer)

"Ahh, come on, Mr. Mastro, do we have to stretch again?" Many seniors shined during the first semester of physical education. Mr. Mastro came up with a better idea. Senior Trust activities. These challenges not only taught us to trust each other but also brought us together to solve a common problem. One such obstacle to face was getting the entire class across the gym, allowing only several planks of wood to touch the floor. Another required students to form a circle by sitting on each other's laps. You can bet many classic moments occurred enroute to solving these bizarre problems. Of course, there were the traditional sports such as the ever popular floor hockey, and kickball, which made its comeback, thanks to the votes of the seniors.

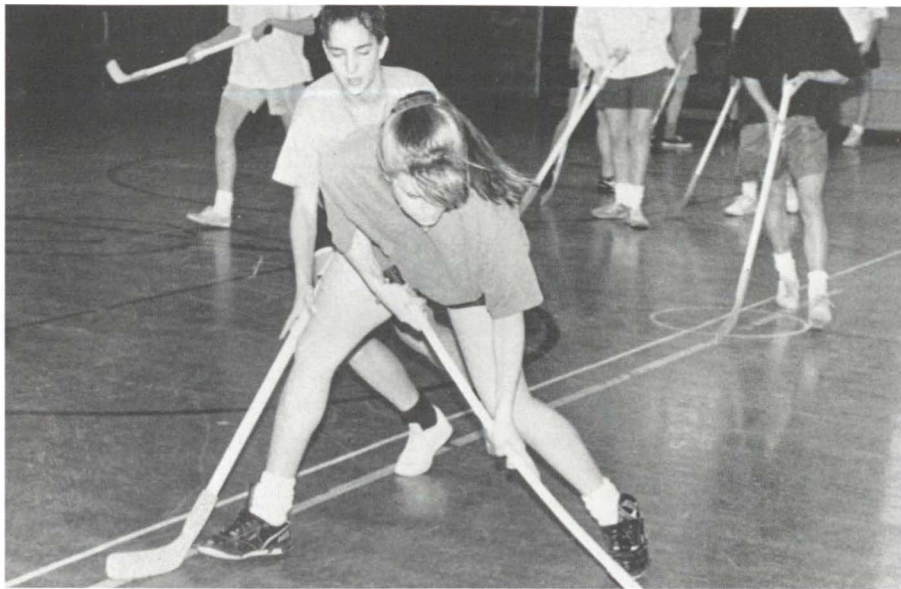

Serves him right?

The Games People Play

Don't worry, Mrs. Poltras. Those students will return.

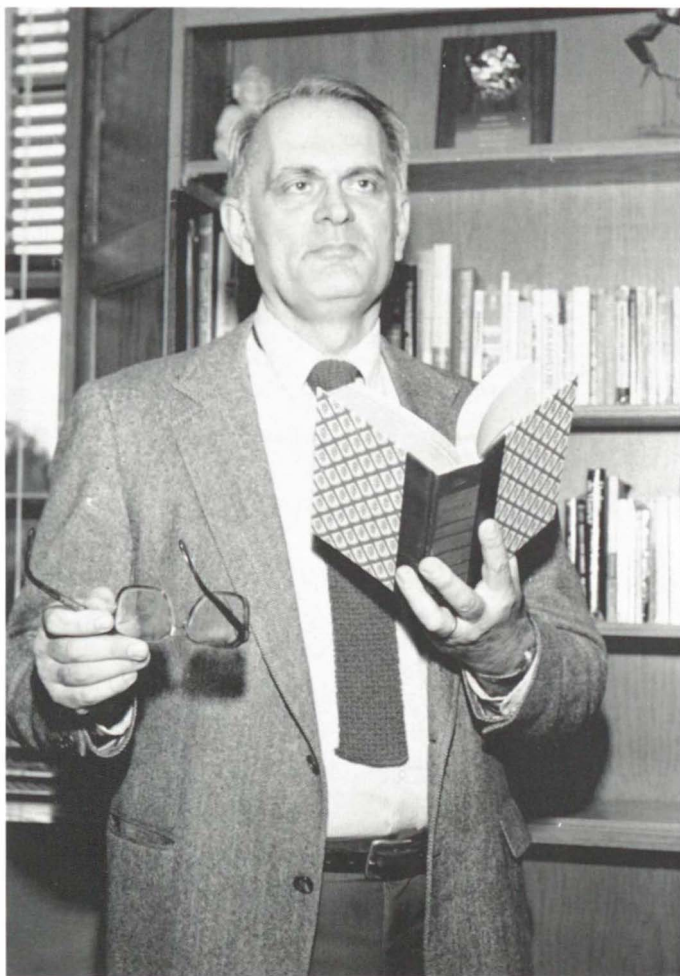

Second, third, and fourth man in! Watch those sophomores!

Mr. Parsons can be found helping one group differentiate between material that can be skimmed and that which must be perused . . . or going over questions designed to improve the level of reading perception . . . or . . . the possibilities are endless. As the sole member of the high school Reading Department, which is chaired by Mrs. Sue Bierer of the Middle School, he has to be the Man for All Reasons. He works hard trying to provide a variety of skill building techniques for a disparate group of student needs. While some are wrestling with problems caused by dyslexia, and some with issues arising from English not being their native language, other students may just be trying to build speed and retention in order to deal with the heavy volume of material they are expected to absorb in an overload of honors courses.

"Yes, we can read 600 pages tonight."

Under the direction of Department Head Amy Hershenson, Special Services offers invaluable programs which are designed to fit the individual needs of students. These may include foreign language help, developing of skills, or something more specialized such as providing a sign language interpreter. Mark Briand, a deaf student who has adapted well to the high school, is a particularly successful example of the program's results.

Unlike many surrounding towns which offer special assistance, Wellesley gives both grades and credit to those who participate, therefore maximizing the incentive to achieve success.

A Profile in Courage

The Redfield Excellence in Teaching Award is a treasured one because the recipient is selected by students as well as colleagues. This year's winner, business teacher and technology coordinator, Susan Manning Copell, truly epitomized the standards of caring and creativity mandated by the award. She was in the vanguard of educators who believe that learning should have relevance, and lifelong skills should be developed in the process. Apple Computer Corporation recognized her curriculum development and interdisciplinary approach to teaching as a model program and featured her in their 1990 Educator's Guide. She was among 12 teachers nationwide who were featured for their extraordinary work.

Perhaps her boundless energy, coupled with a genuine love of people and a need to help them in some way, made her the ideal teacher. Although big businesses were constantly trying to entice her away from the field, teaching was her love, and her students ranged from grammar school keyboarders, whom she insisted on instructing in technique though she could little afford the time, to graduate students at Suffolk University. She designed courses for adults in the community as well; indeed, the stamp of Sue Copell pervades Wellesley High. Ms. Copell was instrumental in helping to bring the first Macintosh Lab to the high school, and the technology revolution over the past five years is due in large part to her vision, creativity and hard work. Campus Treasures has burgeoned as a self supporting lab where students have the opportunity to run a small business from the ground up from managing, marketing and advertising. Until her energy began to fail her, Ms. Copell would keep the store open during all of the student lunch shifts, even though it meant that she, herself, might not have any time to eat.

In addition to all of these tasks, as yearbook advisor, she was constantly organizing, encouraging and inspiring this staff.

Optimism, strength, courage, love, and an incredible facility to make others feel able and valued as individuals: these were the gifts that she shared with everyone she met. Wellesley High lost part of its heart when Ms. Copell succumbed to cancer in late May, but its halls still echo with the staccato tap of her heels, her laughter, and her cheery greetings. We'll miss you, friend.

Her cheery eyes, her loving smile, her "hi pals"
 We will remember
 Her strong spirit, so full of life and zest
 We will remember
 Her never ending happiness and her thoughtfulness
 We will remember
 Her willingness to explain and her constant help
 We will remember
 Her honest concern for us, and her complete confidence in us
 We will always cherish

She has helped us grow and has instilled in us one important quality: to ask more of ourselves — the quality she possessed and has always shown. She will always be in our memory, but most of all, in our hearts.

Cassin Janik, Class of '91

"Sue was genuinely interested in all of her students, and helped them learn more than they ever thought possible. She insisted on quality work, and approached perfection in everything she did."

"... in health and sickness she has been an outstanding role model for students and teachers — upbeat, optimistic, gracious, energetic."

"Sue inspired laughter and good feelings wherever she went. She gave of herself to others in whatever way she could, asking nothing in return. I have never known a more selfless, positive person."

"Her tremendous strength and optimism came in spite of her experiences not because of them. Few of us have the capacity for such selfless transcendence."

Picture reprinted from 1990 Apple Computer Educator's Guide.

"I think I learned so much because of her willingness to help me succeed. If you ever came into her class feeling sad or just not like yourself, her perkiness and energy would make you feel better."

"I think she was a great teacher and, more importantly, she was a great person."

"It is not easy to capture in words the enormous influence Sue Copell has had on students and colleagues at Wellesley High School for nearly 20 years."

"In a situation where I am trying to make a fair decision, I often try to figure out what Sue Copell would do."

"... if we can remember her courage, her optimism, and her selfless caring for others and try and emulate it, her essence will live on in all of us."

Great and Small

Administration

The assistant principals, Mr. Vasaturo and Mrs. Novogroski, survived through another Senior Spring, and managed to maintain some vestiges of law and order. Although primarily concerned with student discipline, Mrs. Novogroski has been working with student leaders to establish a peer counseling program in the high school. While only in its early stages, there is much positive feedback from students and faculty alike.

Mrs. Hayes had another busy year as our principal. The first semester saw her battle for the passing of another override and it was effort not wasted, as the school can now afford to maintain almost all of its services.

Our assistant principals getting together.

The three musketeers!
(Mr. Vas, Mrs. Hayes, Mrs. Novo)

Show me that step, Vanessa.
(Mrs. Novo and Vanessa Martir)

Mrs. Hayes, in touch with our parents.

Secretaries — Nurse

Where would we be without the help and organization of the office staff? Most students think that this collection of highly trained professionals is only concerned with their excuses for cutting class or being late. In fact, the support staff, which includes Mrs. Coughlin, Mrs. Donahue, Mrs. Leverone, Mrs. Demetrius, Mrs. Dorsey and Mrs. Donohue, helps to keep the school running smoothly.

Mrs. Miller, our nurse this year, was always available to the sick and infirm. Of course, she could easily diagnose the anguish that tests and quizzes caused and dealt with those afflicted individuals appropriately.

Yes, I'd say it's an attack of test-itis. (Mrs. Miller)

(Mrs. Demetrius, Mrs. Leverone, Mrs. Dorsey)

Sure I believe your story . . . but will Mrs. Novo?

Mrs. Donahue always with a smile.

Wait, this is my best side.

Guidance

All four grades experienced group guidance this year. It involved course planning for underclasspersons and college advice for the seniors. Guidance counselors led these groups and answered a plethora of questions. Even though some took advantage of the college visits, and only attended to avoid certain tests, many found the visits, which were organized by the Planning and Placement Center, very helpful and informative.

The doorway to your future.

Mr. Touhey, Mr. Whelehan, Mr. Duggan, Ms. O'Byrne and Mrs. Gulrich

What would we do without Roseanne?

Now you're sure my application was sent out?!

Hey, Ms. O'Byrne, while the computer is on, could you change my GPA?

No, I don't think I'll write THAT on your recommendation!

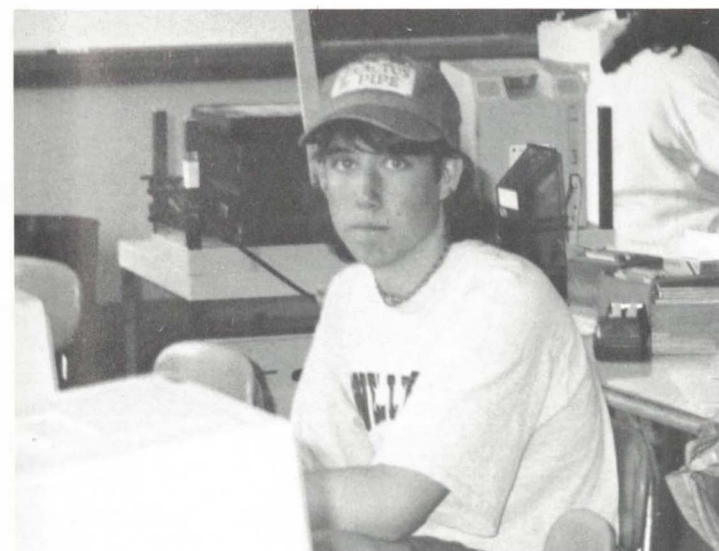

Every Junior's nightmare: the Planning and Placement Office.

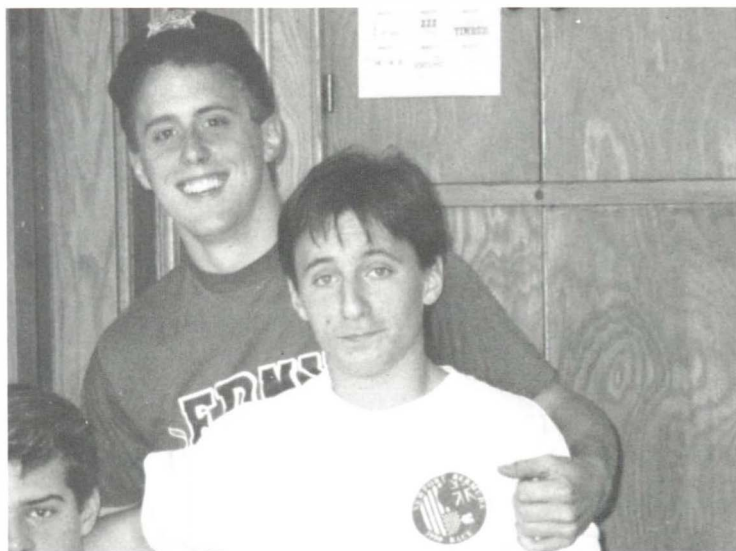

Yes, I'm afraid that you have to take gym to graduate.

Hey Casey, aren't you supposed to be in Group Guidance?

You mean I didn't get into Harvard? (Dann Black)

Guess which one got into the college of his choice.
(Scott Whittemore, Alex Demambro)

Custodians

The Custodians, who are headed up by Mr. Novicki, are looking forward to a busy summer, between the renovation of the Science wing, outdoor maintenance and the renovation of the heating system. The custodial staff will also be installing two new boilers to replace the 1930 model that currently exists. They plan to install a manual replacement for the computer controlled heating system now in use. According to Mr. Novicki, and most students, the system does not work as well as it should. The less complicated system will include a manual switch for every room in the school.

Ready for action, any time of the day.

Yep, this one works.

Patsy, aka 'The Thinker'

For only $29.95, this machine will slice potatoes, cut celery, dice radishes, crush onions and more!

Fill 'er up. Regular.

Lunch Services

The Lunch Service department experienced cuts in working hours this year but have managed quite well despite the changes. There was a significant revamping of the menu. The introduction of Mark's Special Pizza Day, Donuts on Tuesdays, Cold Cuts Days and the Holiday Buffet has added to the expanding variety of the high school's menu. Mrs. Calzini, director of lunch services, would like to re-introduce the salad bar in the future. She also noted that she would miss the Class of 1991, whom she knew so well.

So that's what the raw pizza looks like!

Chocolate milk is the only thing I trust!

Wait until you see what's in your lunch!

Here, let me lend you a hand.

This is my last pan to dry!

The ABC (A Better Chance) Program is made up of six high school girls. They are all from different parts of New York, and were asked to participate in the program by their guidance counselors, because of their academic brilliance. Aurora Simmons says, "The ABC Program is like being at home; we have a curfew, and we have to do chores!"

Even though being away from home is hard for the girls, they feel that it's a good preparation for college. The six girls are spread in all four grades, but the difference in their ages doesn't affect them in any way. They all get along very well, and often do things together on the weekend.

METCO

METCO (Metropolitan Council for Educational Opportunity) had another successful year. This program gives inner city kids the opportunity to get a better education. It has helped to prevent the isolation that can occur between Wellesley and Boston. The students travel from many parts of Boston every day to school. The METCO program begins in kindergarten and finishes with graduation from high school.

Wild at Heart

This year the Junior Prom was held on May 10th at the Natick Hilton. It was a very successful event, raising over eight hundred dollars for the junior class. Music and entertainment was provided by both a DJ and the infamous band, Johnson's Nails. Another highlight of the night was watching all the students arrive by various modes of transport, which ranged from RV's to incredibly stretched limousines. Overall, the prom was a great success and will long be remembered.

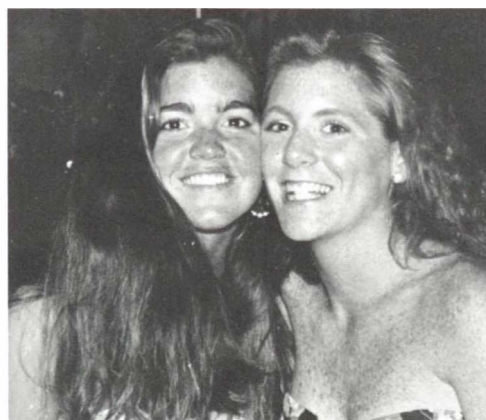

Don't worry, we'll all fit in one limo!

THE CLASS

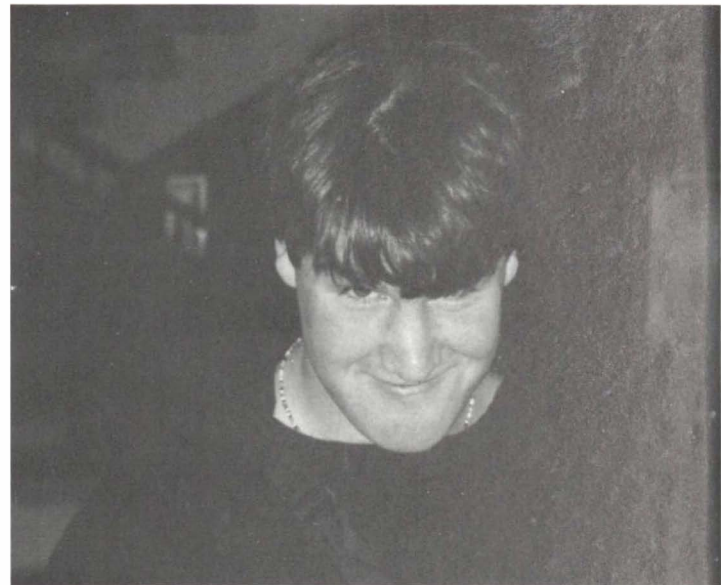

Erupting from the slime of the underclass echelon came the Class of 1991. Some ugly, some gruesome, some beautiful, some intelligent, but all powerful, the seniors. The first semester was grueling, as the demands of college applications and regular coursework certainly inhibited any notions of merriment. Many seniors felt the pressures intensely, but almost all survived "The College Game." As letters came back in April and May, the pace slackened as the seniors geared up for that most wonderful time of the year. Senior Spring was a plethora of activities and pranks, and even the hardest teacher acknowledged that this was OUR time. The result was a class older, wiser and ready for the future.

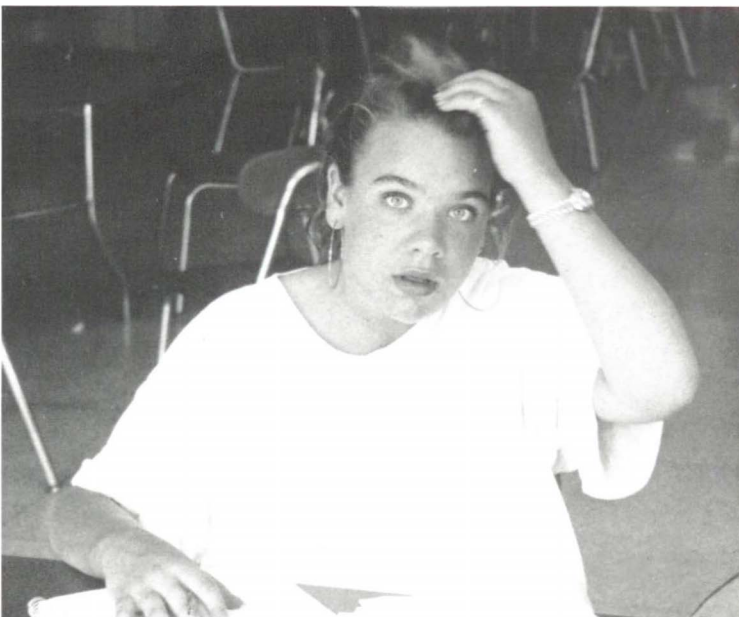

Two large pizzas and no questions!
(Lynn Cloonan)

Now that's hot salsa!
(E. Graham, C. Sierra, E. Stonner, S. Kestenbaum)

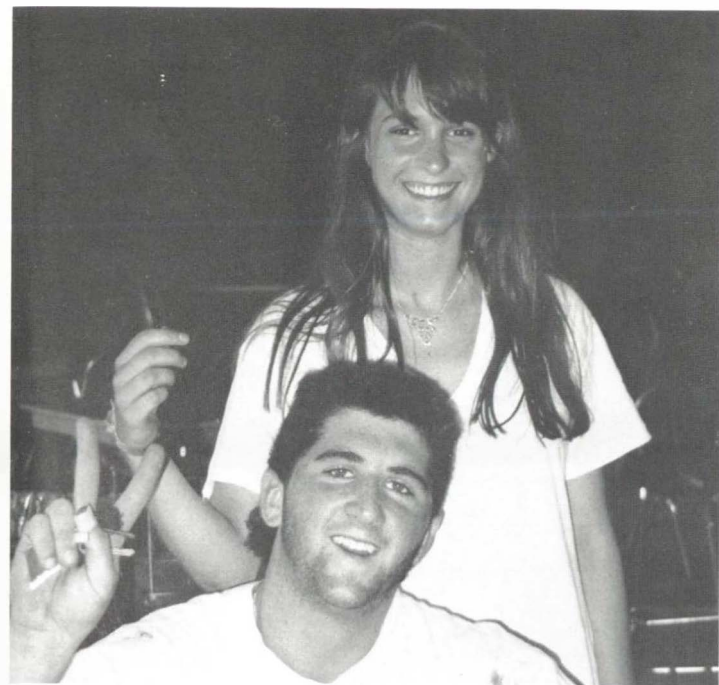

Most Likely to be Kicked Out of the Library.
(Nate Grady)

You mean I'm supposed to do homework at home?
(Kate Diggins)

Thelma and Louise . . .
(Gillian Fraser, Joanne Gildenberg)

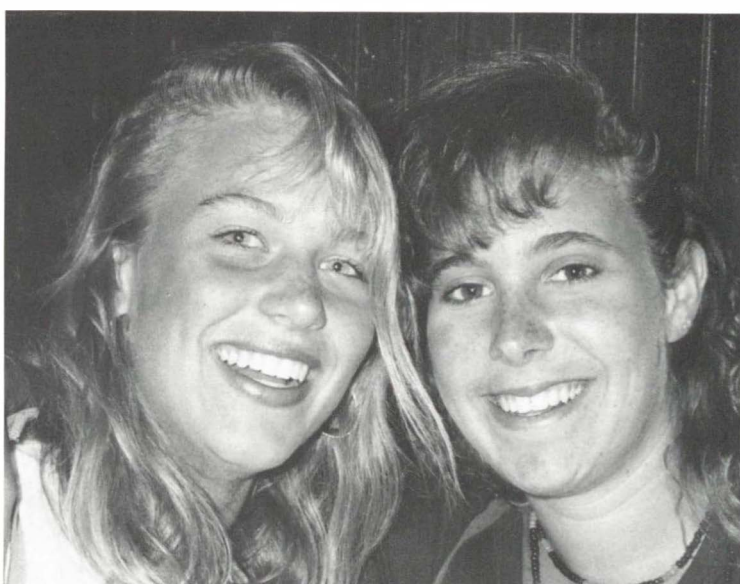

What do you mean 'go to class'? We're Seniors!
(John O'Toole, Aimee Dover)

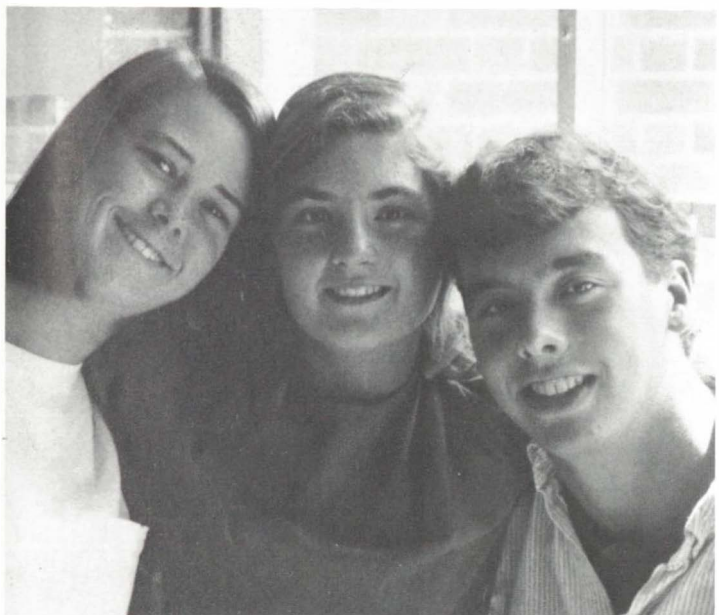

Hey girls, wanna play softball?
(Erika Watson, Sue Loomis)

But Chris, she thought it was funny!
(Chris Lowry, Kristen Garni)

Do blondes have more fun?
(Julie Gordon, Katy Clivetta)

Ellie, Laura and Matt marking out senior territory.

Joe brings new meaning to the term "dedicated student."

HAIL TO THE CHIEFS

Our officers.

Senior year has been so much fun,

It's hard to believe that we're finally done.

Many activities happened in the fall,

Halloween, Senior Women and Thanksgiving Football.

Then came the treasure hunt; it was a blast!

The clues were so good, it was not over fast.

Senior spring brought so many things to do:

The Picnic, Midnight Run and softball, too.

Last but not least, came Beep Day and Prom,

So much to do, it was hard to stay calm.

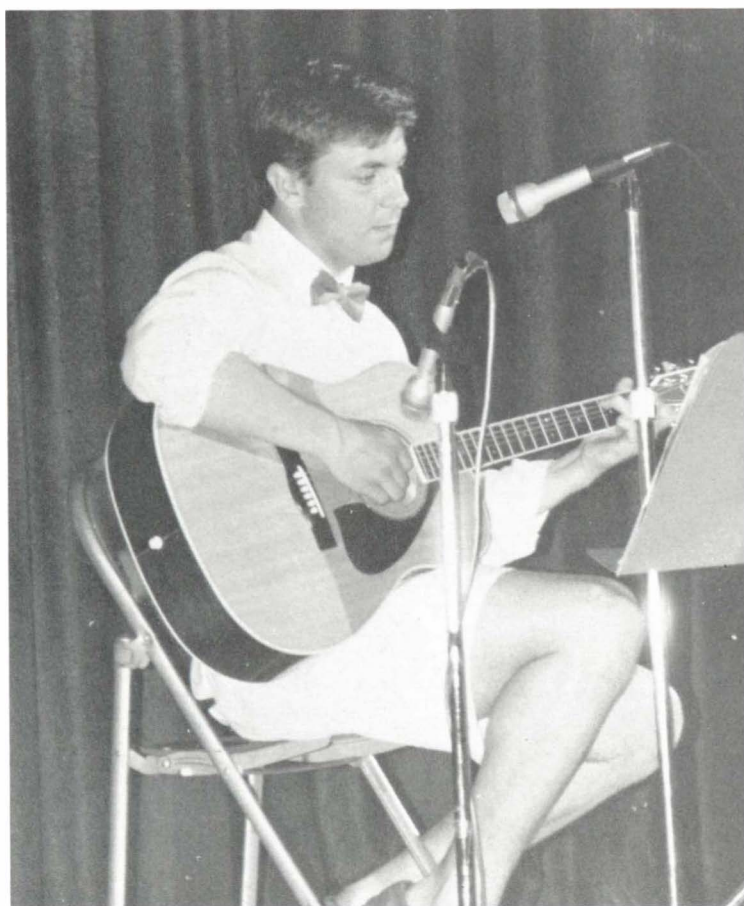

The Banquet and Graduation came and went by.

The All-Night Party meant saying goodbye.

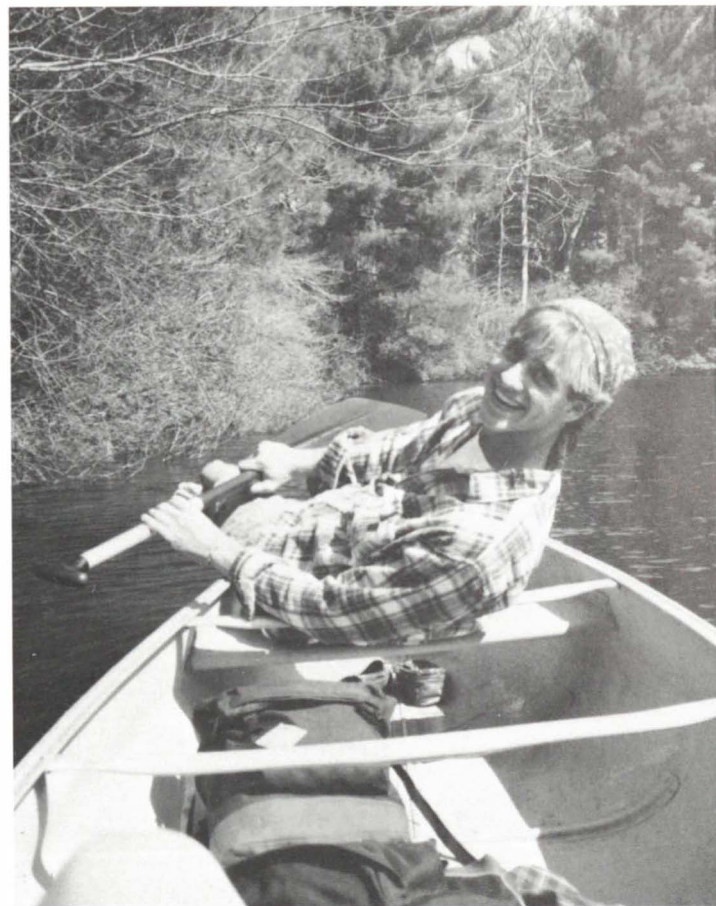

As Class Officers we would just like to say,

Good Luck as we each go a separate way!

Aaron, Andy, Pam and Frank

Andy, this one's for you . . .
(Aaron Chaiisson, president)

Sing it to me, Aaron!
(Andy Burt, vice-president)

Get ready, Frank, here it comes.
(Pam Poltras, secretary)

I'm ready for it, Pam!
(Frank Truslow, treasurer)

Class of 1991 Officers.
Frank, Pam, Andy, Aaron, Class Advisor Dr. Rumsey

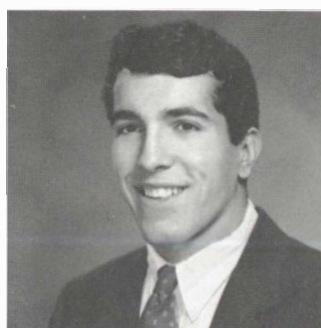

Wendy L. Adlerstein

"If it's a future world we fear, we have tomorrow's seeds right here. For you can hold them in your hand or let them fall into the sand."

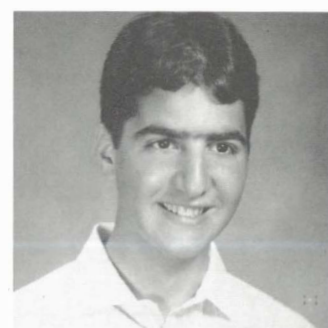

Lourdes Aguilera

"... I can accept anything, except what seems to be the easiest for most people: the half-way, the almost, the just-about, the in-between."

Michael Aroian

"Some are born to move the world and live their fantasies. But most of us just dream about the things we'd like to be." — Rush

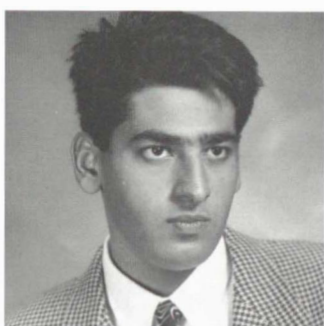

Rabi R. Aude

"Life is a jigsaw puzzle with most of the pieces missing."

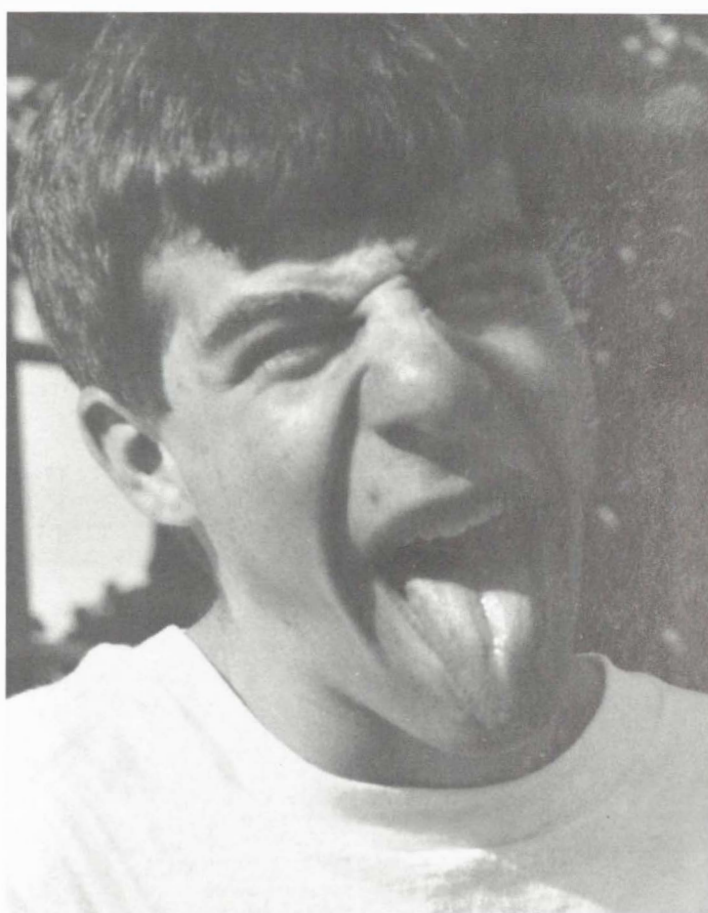

David Avakian

"Class of 1991 Seniors — Good Luck"

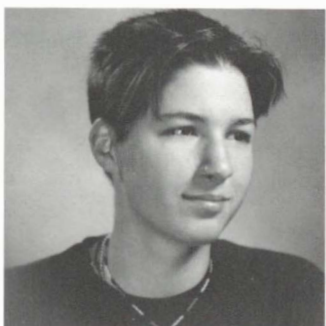

Mehdy Baghaei-Rad

"To strive, to seek, to find and not to yield." — Lord Tennyson

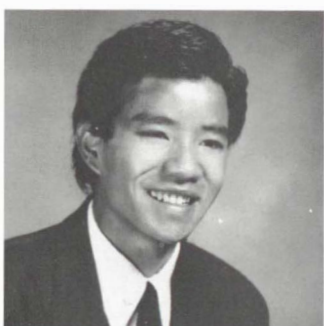

"I'm parched. Let's go to Danny's." (Matt Crandall)

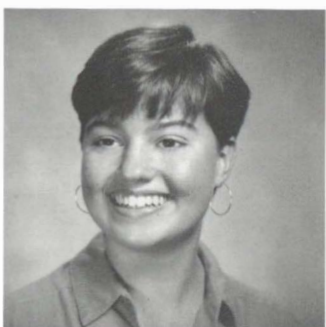

Nell P. Bartlett

"Do you remember when? Yeah, so do I. We call those the salad days." — Minor Threat

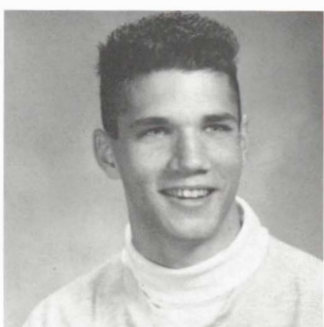

Dan V. Batchelor

"I'm not what I should be, I'm not what I want to be, I'm not what I hope to be. But I'm certainly not, by the grace of God, what I used to be."

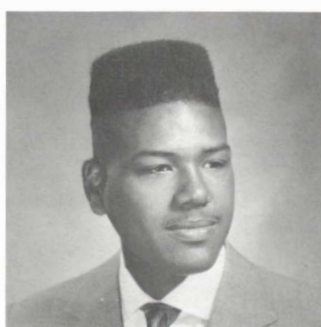

Garland Baum

"There has to be one moment, a single isolated moment, pear-shaped, quivering and outlined in radium, when all there is to say is ... 'Done'."

Michael Beaver

As I skip my last class, then forge myself a pass, peace to '91. We had lots of laughs.

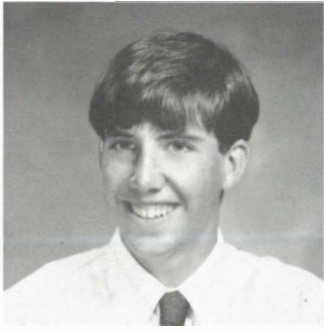

Lamont Belcher

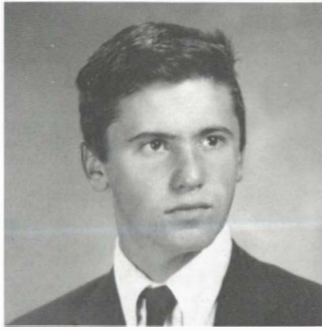

Tera Benoit

"In complete darkness we are all the same. It is our knowledge and wisdom that separate us. Don't let your eyes deceive you."

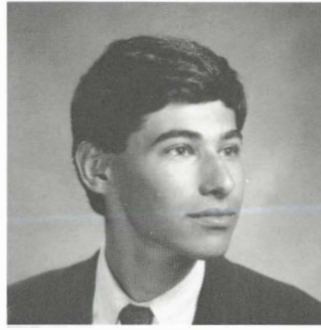

Daniel Black

"I'm a rootin' cowboy, my name is cowboy Dann. I can ride a horse and rope a steer as fast as any man." — Cowboy Dann

Ben Bleichman

"The ocean always has friendly waves for dedicated surfers." — Salada Tea Bags

Seth Bloom

"Enjoy Life — this is not a dress rehearsal!"

Tamara Roseman

"Life: a gift from God where nothing is certain, but anything is possible." Best wishes, Class of 1991.

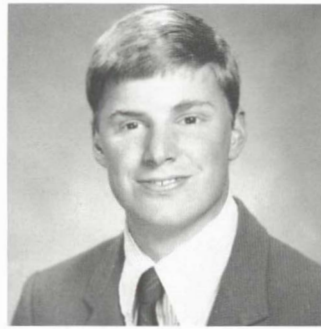

Stephen E. Botts

"I wish I was in Tijuana, eating barbequed iguana." — Wall of Voodoo

Kathryn M. Brush

"I shall lie through the centuries, and hear the blessed mutter of the mass, and see God made and eaten all day long." — R. Browning

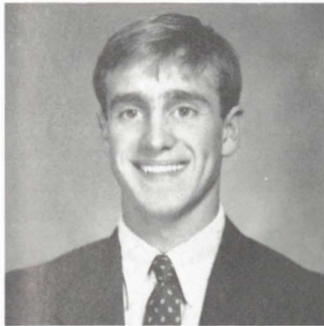

Timothy Buffum

James A. Bures

"All I know is that I know nothing." — Socrates

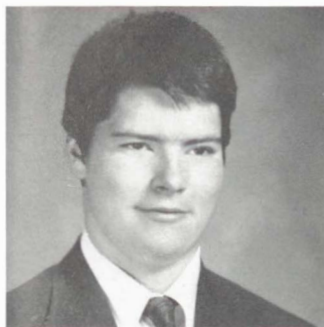

R. Andrew Burtt

"Man struggles to find life outside himself, unaware that the life he is seeking is within him." — Kahlil Gibran

Robert Calzini

"Some will win, Some will lose, Some were born to sing the blues."

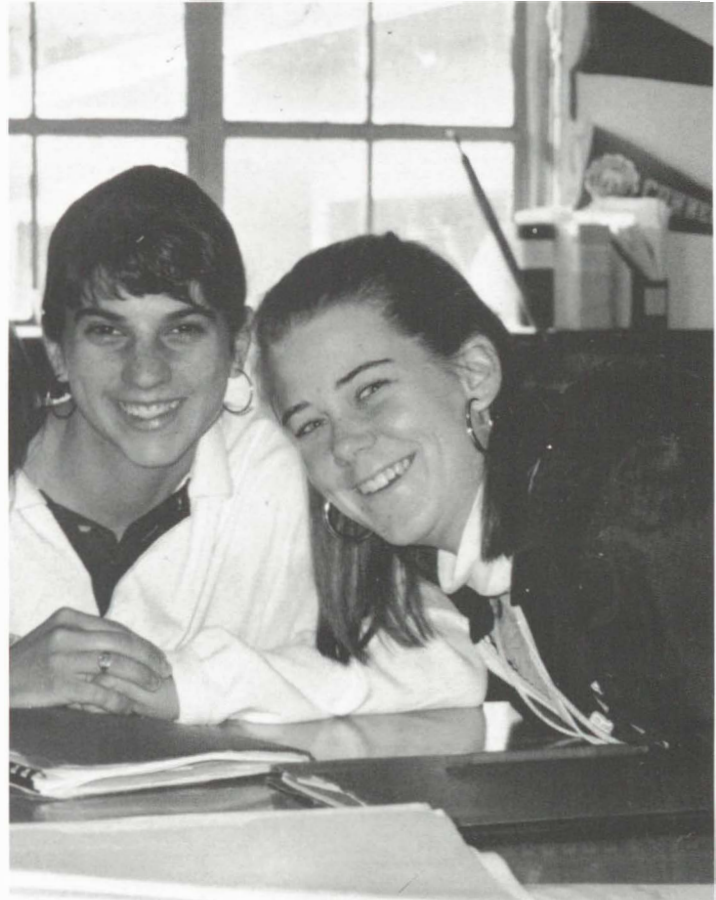

Matthew Cannon

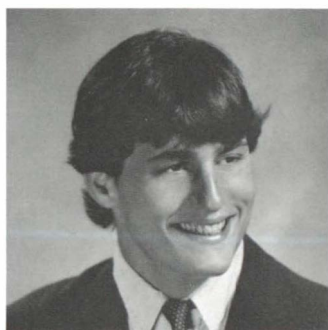

Jennifer Carmody

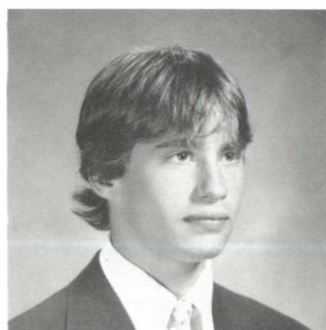

"I want someone to follow who won't lead the way." — Edie Brickell. Thanks, Mom, I love you!

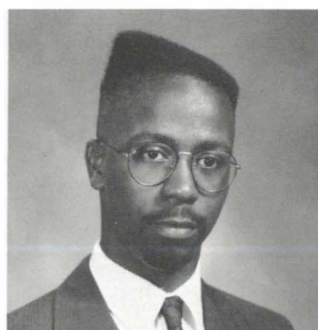

"We know where we are headed!" (Pam Poltras, Ellie Stewart)

Brian A. Casey

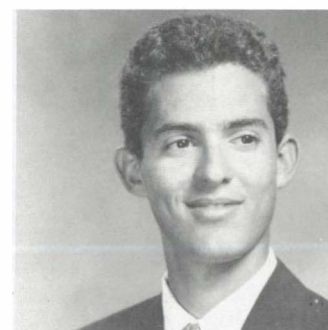

Kevin M. Casey

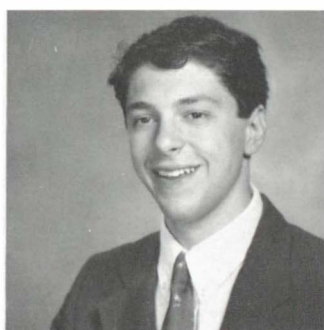

Karsten J. Y. Cash

"I believe that hard work and a good effort, in the long run, will result in a positive outcome."

Jorge Catala

"Es cosa de puertorriquenos no podras en tender."

Matthew Cavaliero

"Everyone has talent. What is rare is the courage to follow the talent to the dark place where it leads. Only those who dare, truly live."

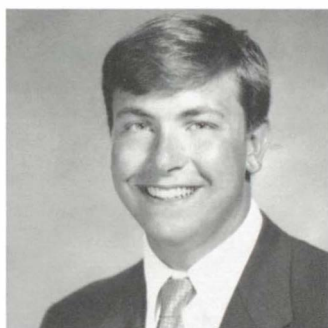

"Hey, Gillian, can I copy your homework?" (Jim Bures)

Doris Celli

"Let us then be up and doing, with a heart for any fate; still achieving, still pursuing, learn to labor and to wait." — Longfellow

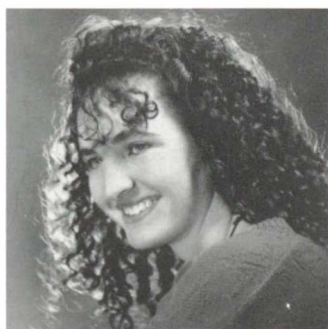

Aaron Chaisson

"His truth was his only motive. His own truth and his own work to achieve it in his own way . . . He held this truth above all things."

Kathryn Regis Civetta

"There are many people we meet in our lives but only a few will make a lasting impression. It's these people we'll think of as true friends."

Lynn A. Cloonan

"Open up, everything is waiting for you. You can go your own way. It may be raining but there's a rainbow above you."

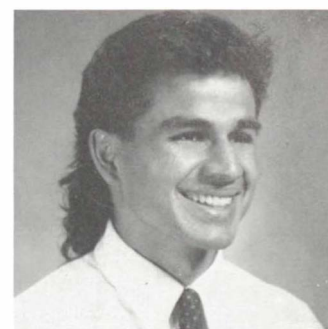

Danielle Cohen

"The time has come now all can see, as seeing this is killing me. Our future victim to command, together we can lend a hand." — UB40

Cecily Cook

Raul Cooke

"To laugh, to cry, to weep, and a forever more gesture to say goodbye; but not forever, for the memory of friendships will always endeavor."

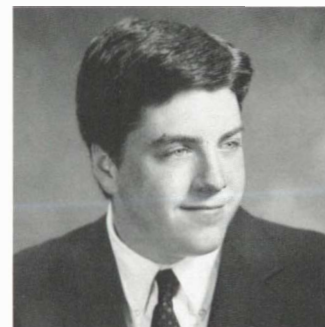

"No, sorry Jim. Too many people have used it." (Gillian Fraser)

Laura Corrigan

"There's a road, no simple highway between dawn and dark of night. If you go, no one may follow; that path's for your steps alone."

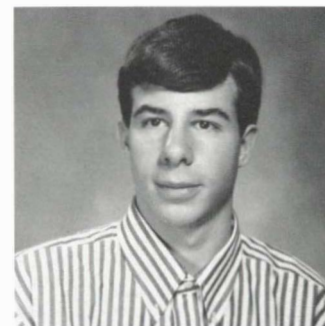

David Coughlin

"Hands perform, hands respond, hands gesture. A show of ears and eyes, a show of hearts and minds. A show of hands."

Arrie Courtney

"Colleges are places where pebbles are polished and diamonds are dimmed." — R. G. Ingersoll. All of this is for you, Mom.

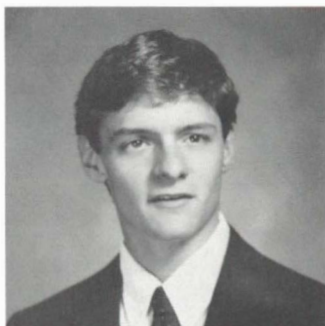

Matthew Crandall

"If you can't be with the one you love, love the one you're with." — CSN. Best of Luck, Class of '91.

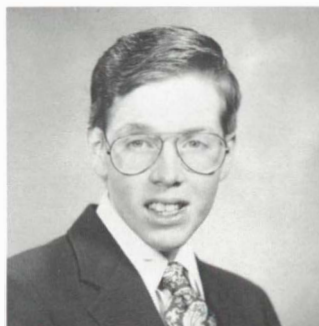

Jill Croke

"If you don't really know where you want to go, it makes no difference which road you take. If you don't give up, you may just be okay."

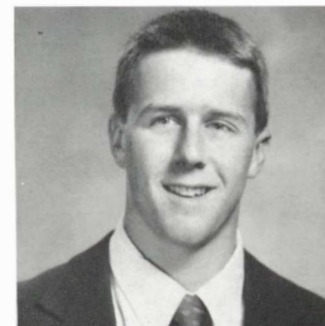

Roy Elliot Cundiff

"When you're on a long journey and the end keeps getting further and further away, you realize that the real end is the journey."

Michael G. Curran

I leave the Key Club lots of good luck without my excellent collecting talent. But before I go, I'll teach you my secrets on collecting.

William Dacey

RAWHIDE

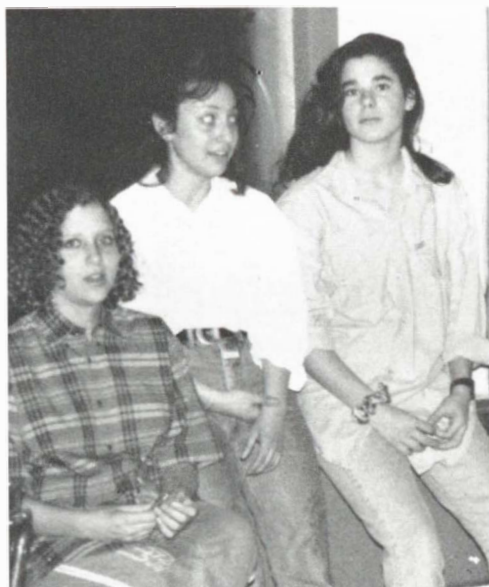

Cowboys and cowgirls rode in from all over for Club '91, which was a western this year. Seniors and mortals alike square-danced until the wee hours of the early evening. Murals of cowboys, horses and cacti adorned the caf, and just to make the scene authentic, hay was imported from Texas to the delight of all.

THE LAST HURRAH

Almost all fall, winter and spring athletes turned out to honor their teammates at the Senior Athletic Banquet. While feasting on chicken and homemade goodies, the seniors received plaques that displayed their participation in the athletic program. Aaron Chaisson and Pam Poitras were selected to receive the Kelli MacDonald Memorial Scholarship awards, while

Brian Mullaney and Karen DeMarco were named Athletes of the Year. The selection process was one of the toughest in years as there were so many deserving candidates for each award. Needless to say, Wellesley High School will miss the Class of 1991 and the competitive spirit they brought to each athletic event.

Let me guess, it's a book, right?

WILD THINGS

There is a legend that says those who become seniors sometimes suffer from a loss of memory. They forget their school day routine and find themselves disoriented and heading for unknown destinations. Such a phenomenon occurred this year, as the afflicted individuals found Matt 'The Wise' Crandall's castle and received clues for their journey. They meandered to a happy paradise with crashing waves, bubbling laughter and a sun that altered skin tones.

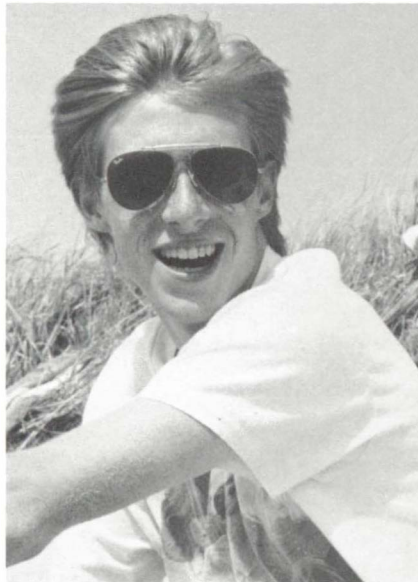

As stormy skies threatened rain, memory returned, and the caravan of seniors remembered the way back home, cursing the illness that had kept them away from school.

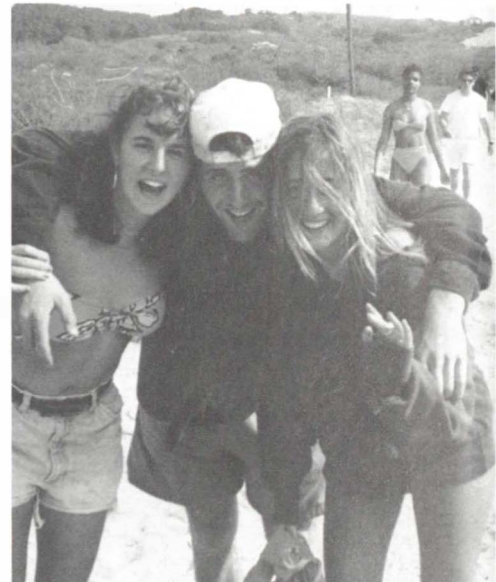

What are you looking at?
(Mike Hughes)

"Shades" of meaning.

Hey, Fritter, why the glasses?

Who is this guy?

What are you measuring, guys?

Seeing double . . . twice!

The gang's all here.

Hey now, you two, none of that!

Havin' fun in the sun!

We're thin, trim, and ready to swim!

Friends, sun and fun. What else is there?

Has anyone seen a headless body?

MAKE WAY FOR BEEPERS

On a pretty spring morning a group of young beepers decided to make their way across town. They gathered at the high school parking lot and decorated each other and their cars with shaving cream, water balloons, streamers and eggs. After playing in the sun, the group lined up so they could stick together on their journey. They felt safe because they were behind a leader Beeper. Under the watchful eyes of Wellesley's finest, they crossed all the roads safely. Along the way, they beeped and yelled and made as much noise as they could. Some beepers were naughty and had to go to the side of the road for punishment. They finally ended at Star for one last toot before leaving their nests forever.

And away we go!

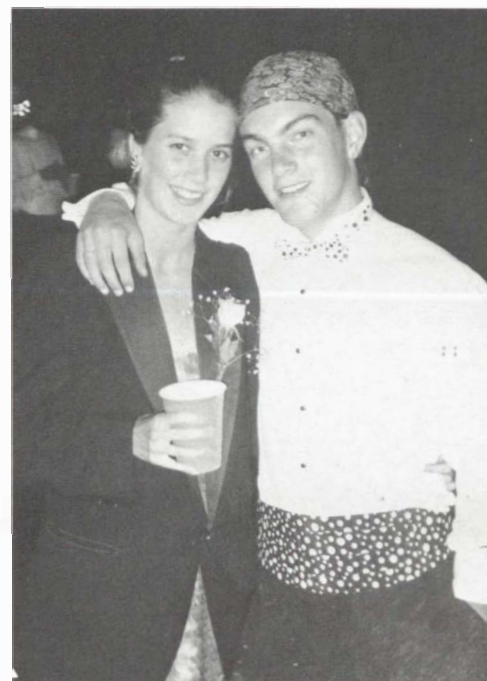

And see you, too, Erika!

CINDERELLA

Once upon a time there was a class of poor, overworked girls. In early May they slowly began to find their Prince Charmings, and as the magical ball approached, their Fairy Godmothers gave the girls beautiful gowns. The Princes ordered the royal tailor (Mr. Tux) to prepare their threads and had their footmen order pumpkins and limousines.

The grand evening arrived, and the Cinderellas feasted at various royal banquets with their Princes. The handsome couples arrived at the Westin Castle, swept up the escalators, kicked off their glass slippers and danced the night away. Alas, the clock struck midnight, and as the couples ran away, all that remained were memories of a fairytale evening.

THE LAST SUPPER

This was it! The final meal before we mounted the podium to receive our diplomas, the last opportunity to display our budding adulthood. Our past was relived through the slide show, and our memories were revived throughout the evening as we conversed with friends. The evening was truly a highlight of the senior month.

Slide show sisters.

Joe, if Mark can use a razor, you can!

Don't miss the bus!

Hey look, it's Rico Suave!
(Jill Rapp)

Yes, we heard the one about the state trooper.

Yep! The slide show was great.

THE GRADUATE

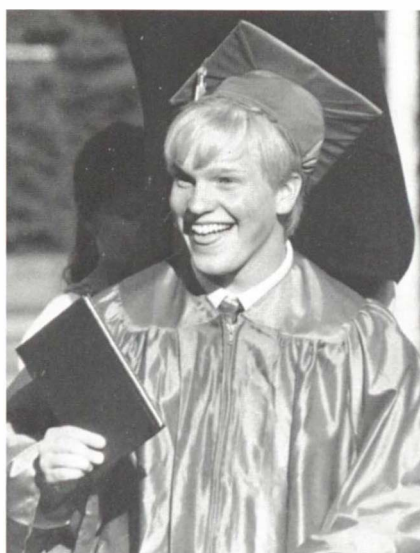

The student watched as row after row was called from the stands to line up in procession order. Finally, his row was formed and they marched from the gym. The swish of the red satin accompanied the band as the graduates took their seats. They were entertained by songs, beach balls and addresses. They presented a gift to those about to grant them their diplomas and heard the winners of the Senior Cups. The student watched as his friends rose and received the fruit of four years of work. He, too, followed in a line and accepted his before giving a marble to the principal. He left the stage and waved to his parents. It was over.

That says it all.

A nervous twirl?

Good Dylan. Down boy.

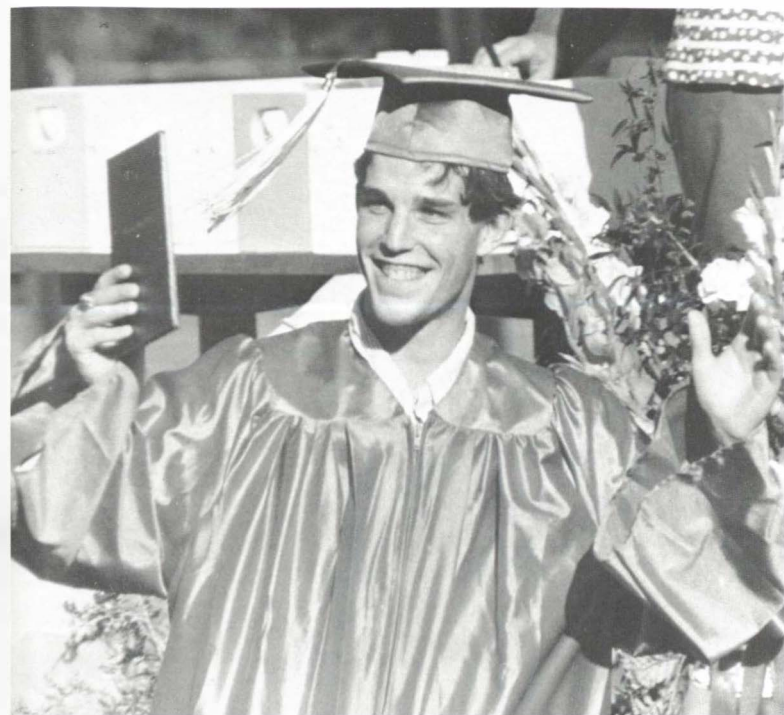

Yep, you failed English.
Just kidding.

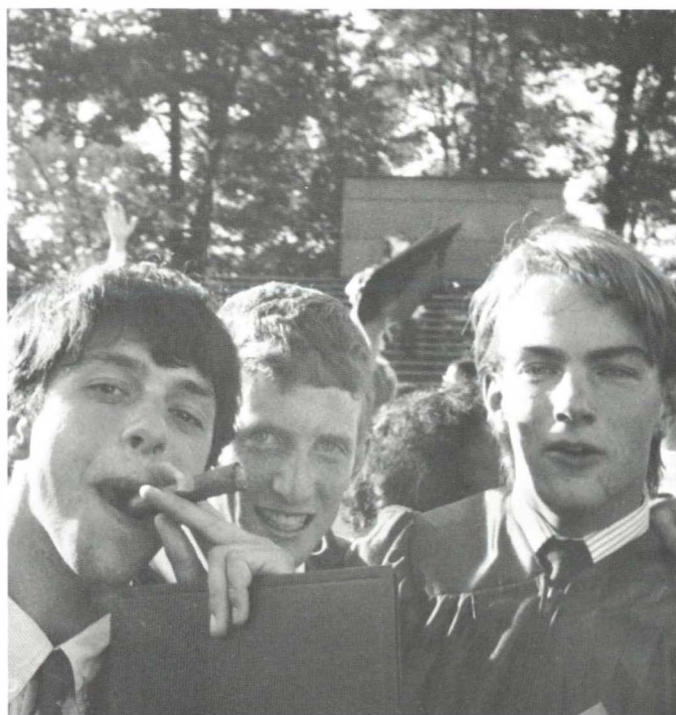

Almost there ladies!

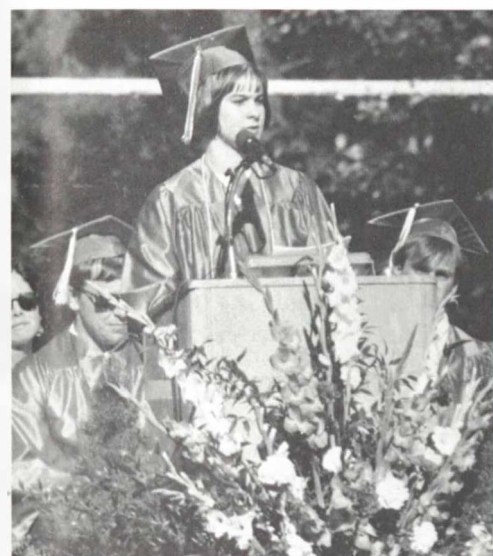

Deiter and his fellow graduates.

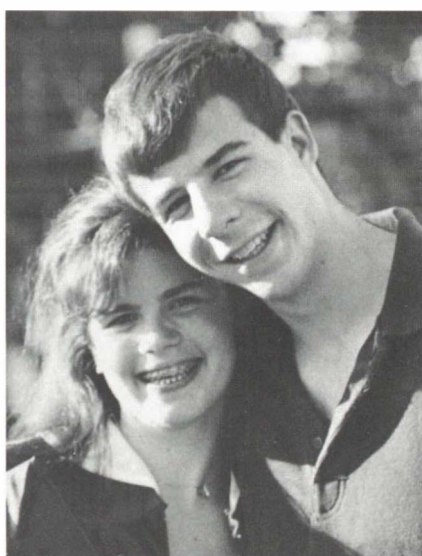

Yes, yes, yes, yes, yes, yes, yes, yes . . .
(Alex Stone)

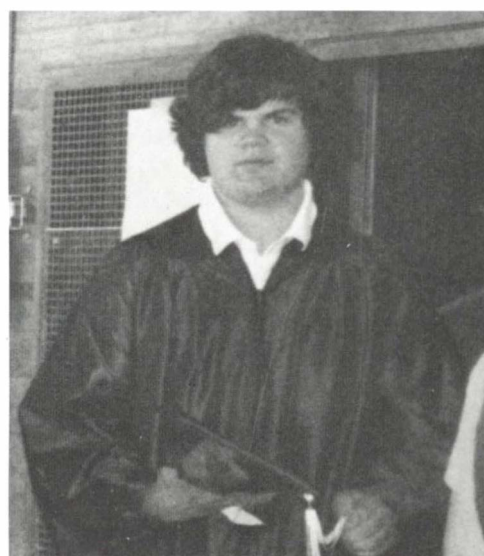

Hee, hee! It's an exploding cigar!

Let's hear it for the Song Sisters, ladies and gentlemen!

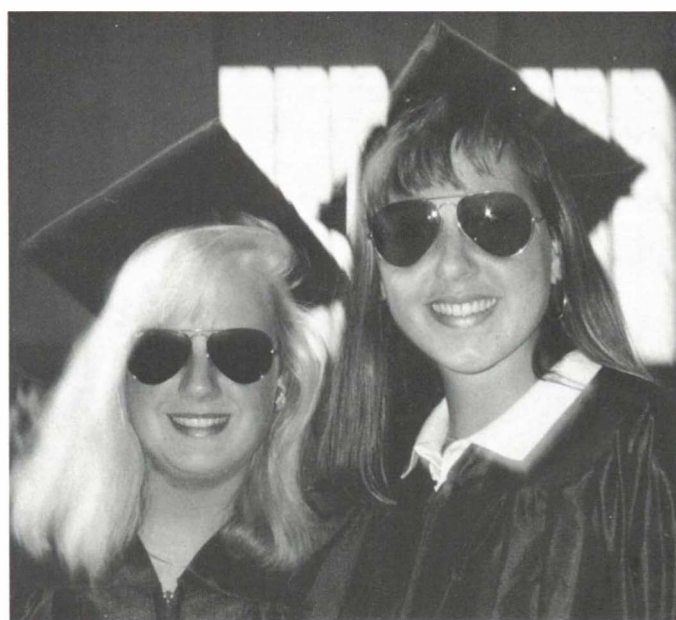

More happy graduates.

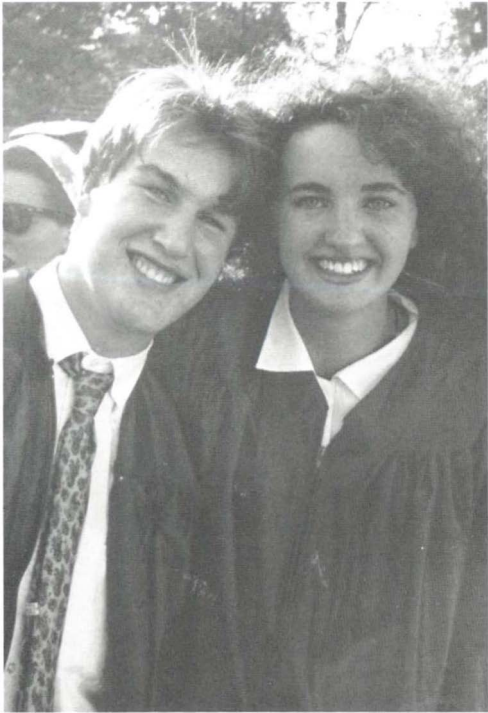

How do I put the cap on?

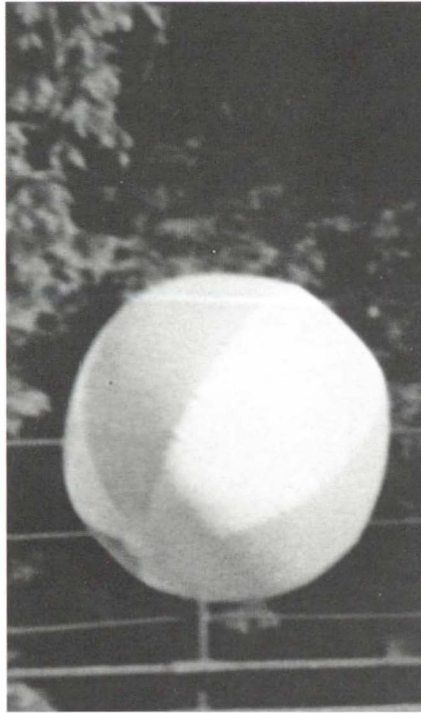

Best Buddies.

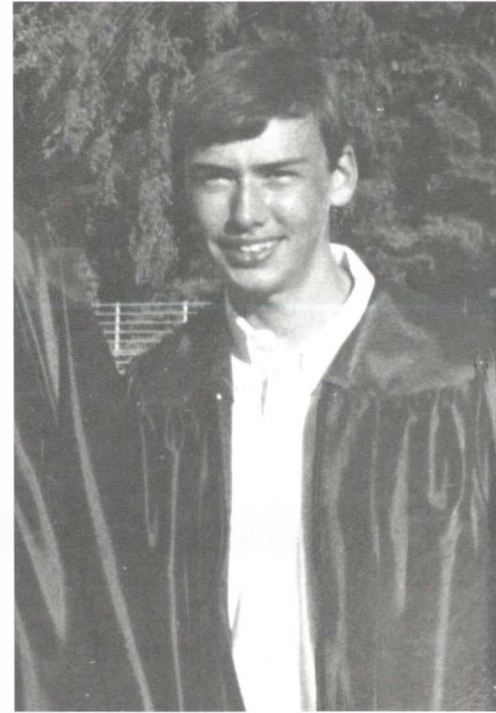

Ray Bans are definitely the way to go!

One last hug!
(Nate Grady, Lynn Cloonan)

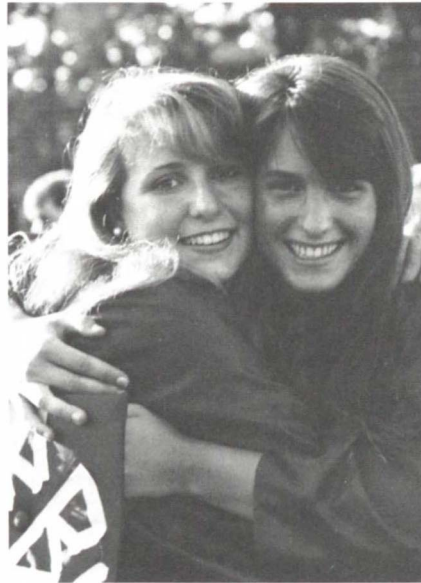

The inevitable beach ball.

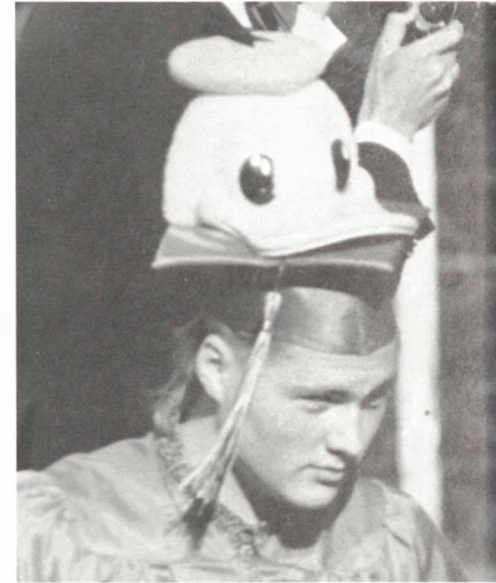

Another graduate.
(Rob Seymour)

Yes, I graduated!
(Dave Papazian)

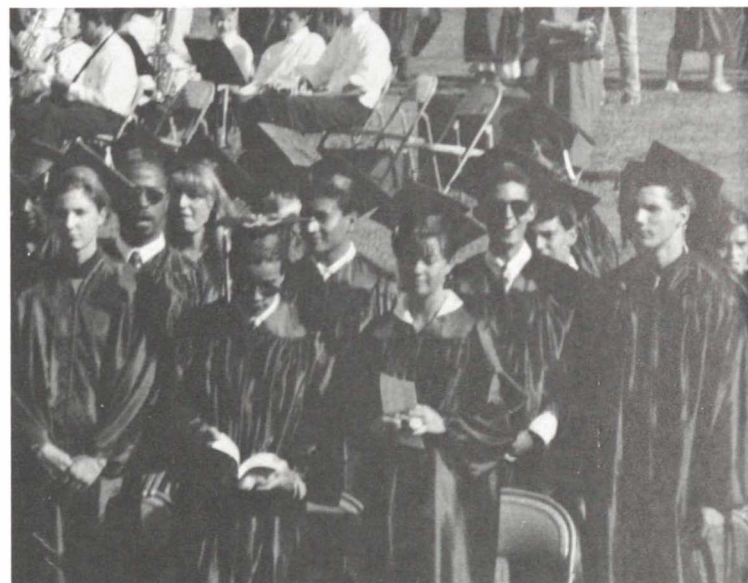

Remembrances.
(Melissa Davis, Almee Dover)

He was paid off by Disney.
(Ryan Novotny)

Tassel problems?
(Lisa Stevens, Courtney Welbourn)

Why so serious?

Sure we know the words.
but to which song?

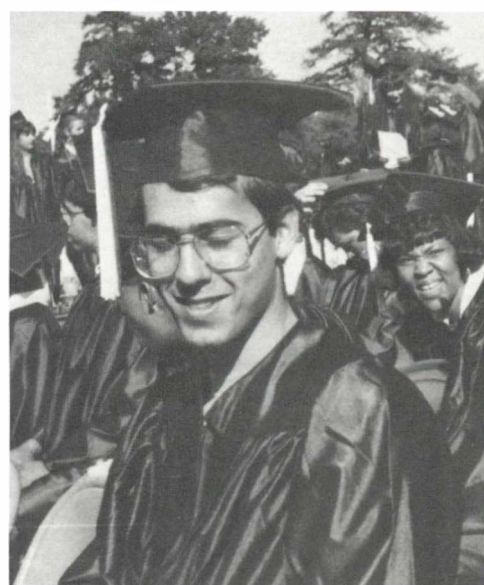

Here, have another marble.
(Phil Riley)

Wait, did I finish my chem homework? (M. Ellerman)

Another ecstatic grad!
(Lacresha Robinson)

Wake me when they call my name!
(Andrew McGeachie)

Believe me, I'm happy!
(Jim Bures)

The End!

UNDER THE BOARDWALK

Imagine a world where your parents wait on you hand and foot and bring you your favorite treats. Imagine a DJ and a live band playing your favorite songs. Imagine betting ten thousand "dollars" on a roulette wheel and not even blinking. Such was the paradise of the All-Night Party which was hosted by senior parents and sponsored by the community.

Atlantic City was the theme of the evening and the caf was decorated appropriately and superbly. Jugglers, fortune tellers, caricaturists, balloon-twisters and magicians were present to entertain those who tired of basketball and volleyball. This mystical evening lived up to everyone's expectations.

Now Alethea, save some for later.

Yes Stephen, we have graduated.

It appears that Will won that hand.

Only six more hours! You can do it! (C. Sierra, L. Ostrer)

The pace was fast and furious at the casino.

Karsten never misses an opportunity to meet women.

Have I got a deal for you!
(J. Murray, G. Echard, M. Sicchio)

Karsten is trying to achieve that "sheik" look.

Oooo, I hate varmints!

No, I will not do that for the yearbook! (S. Whittemore)

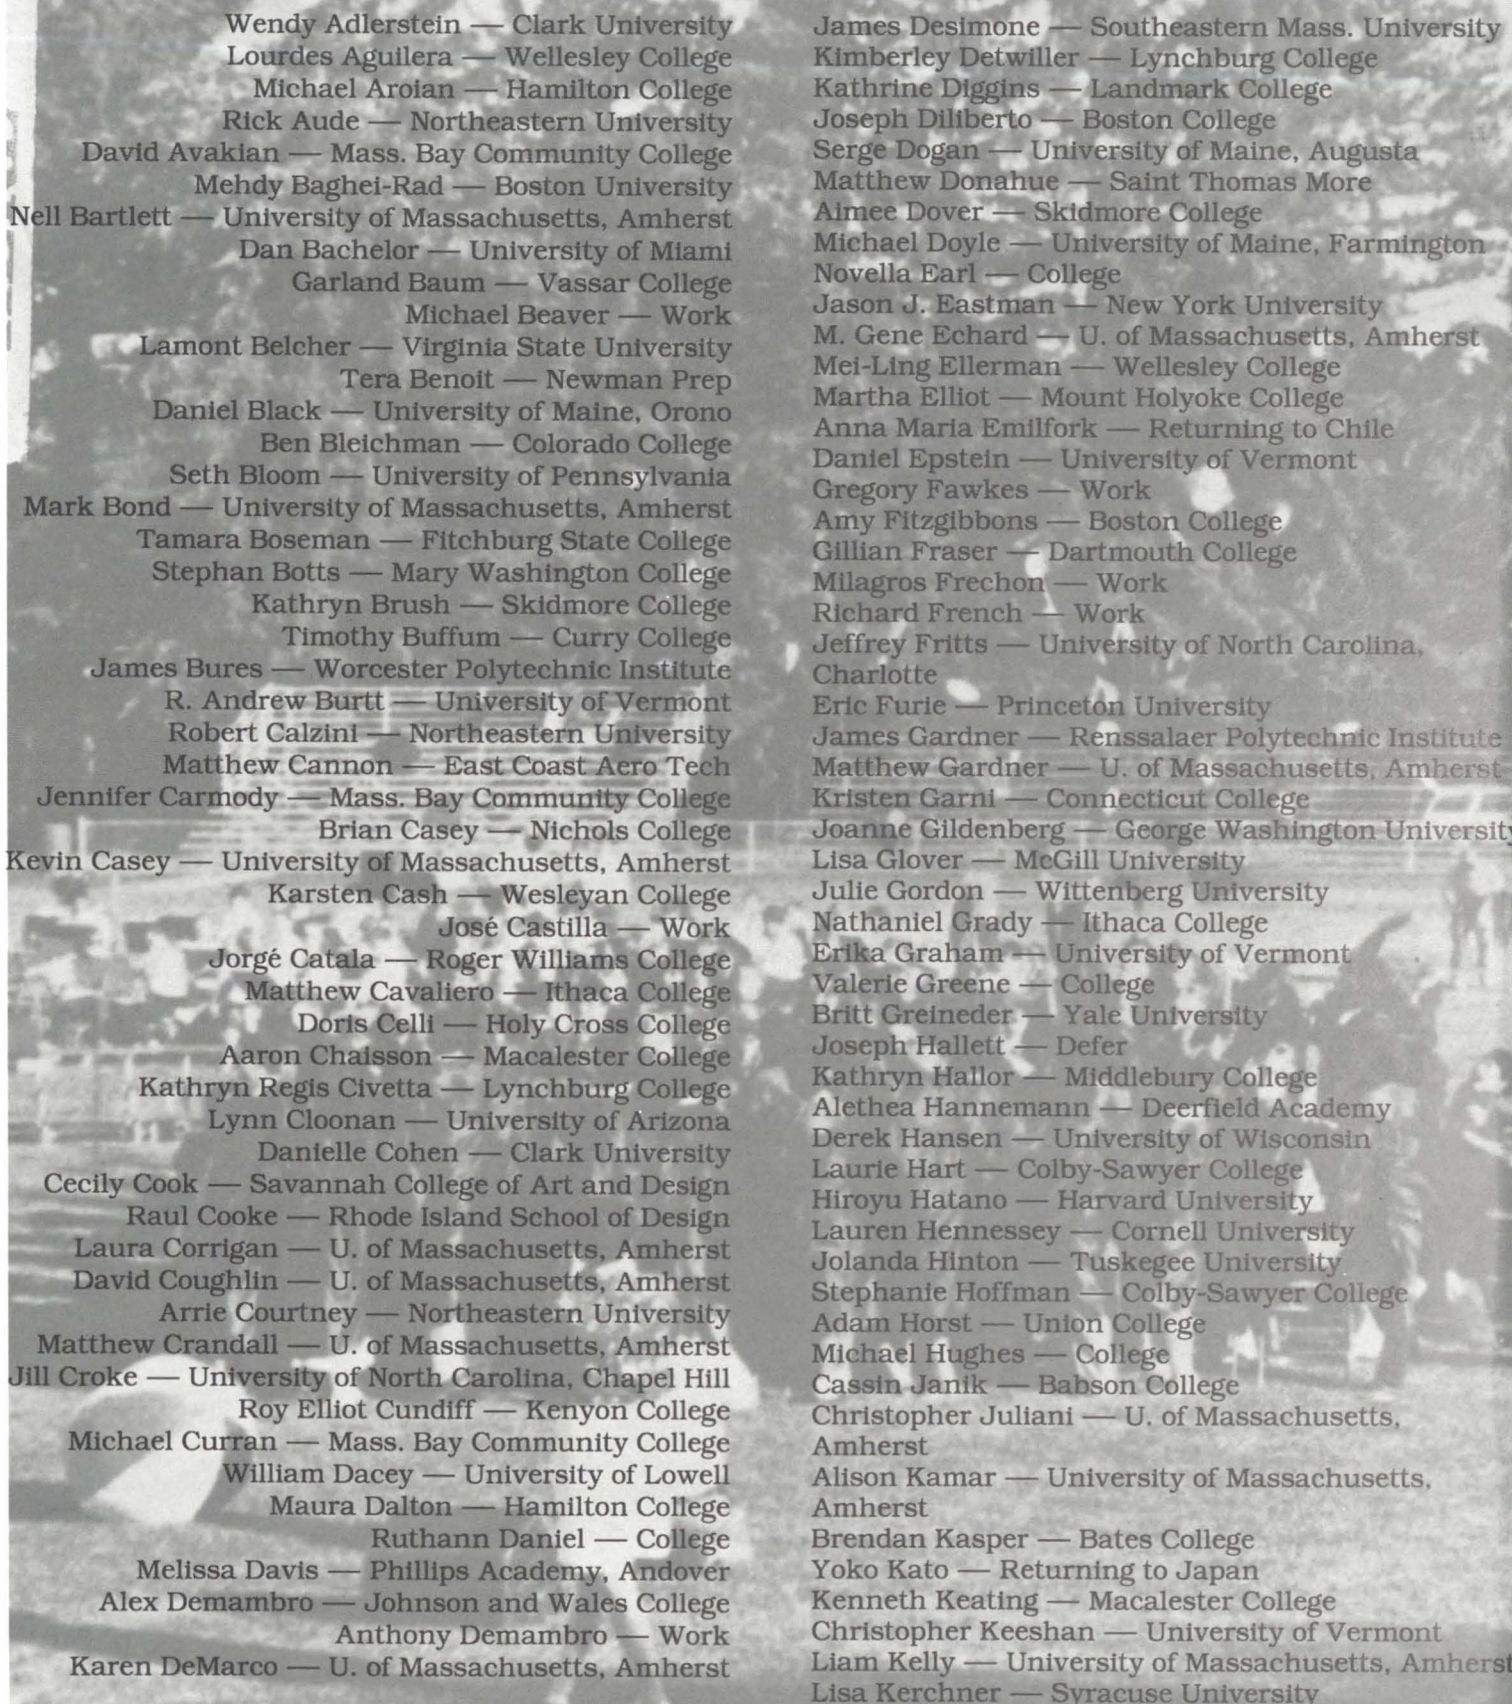

Just sit right back and you'll hear a tale . . .

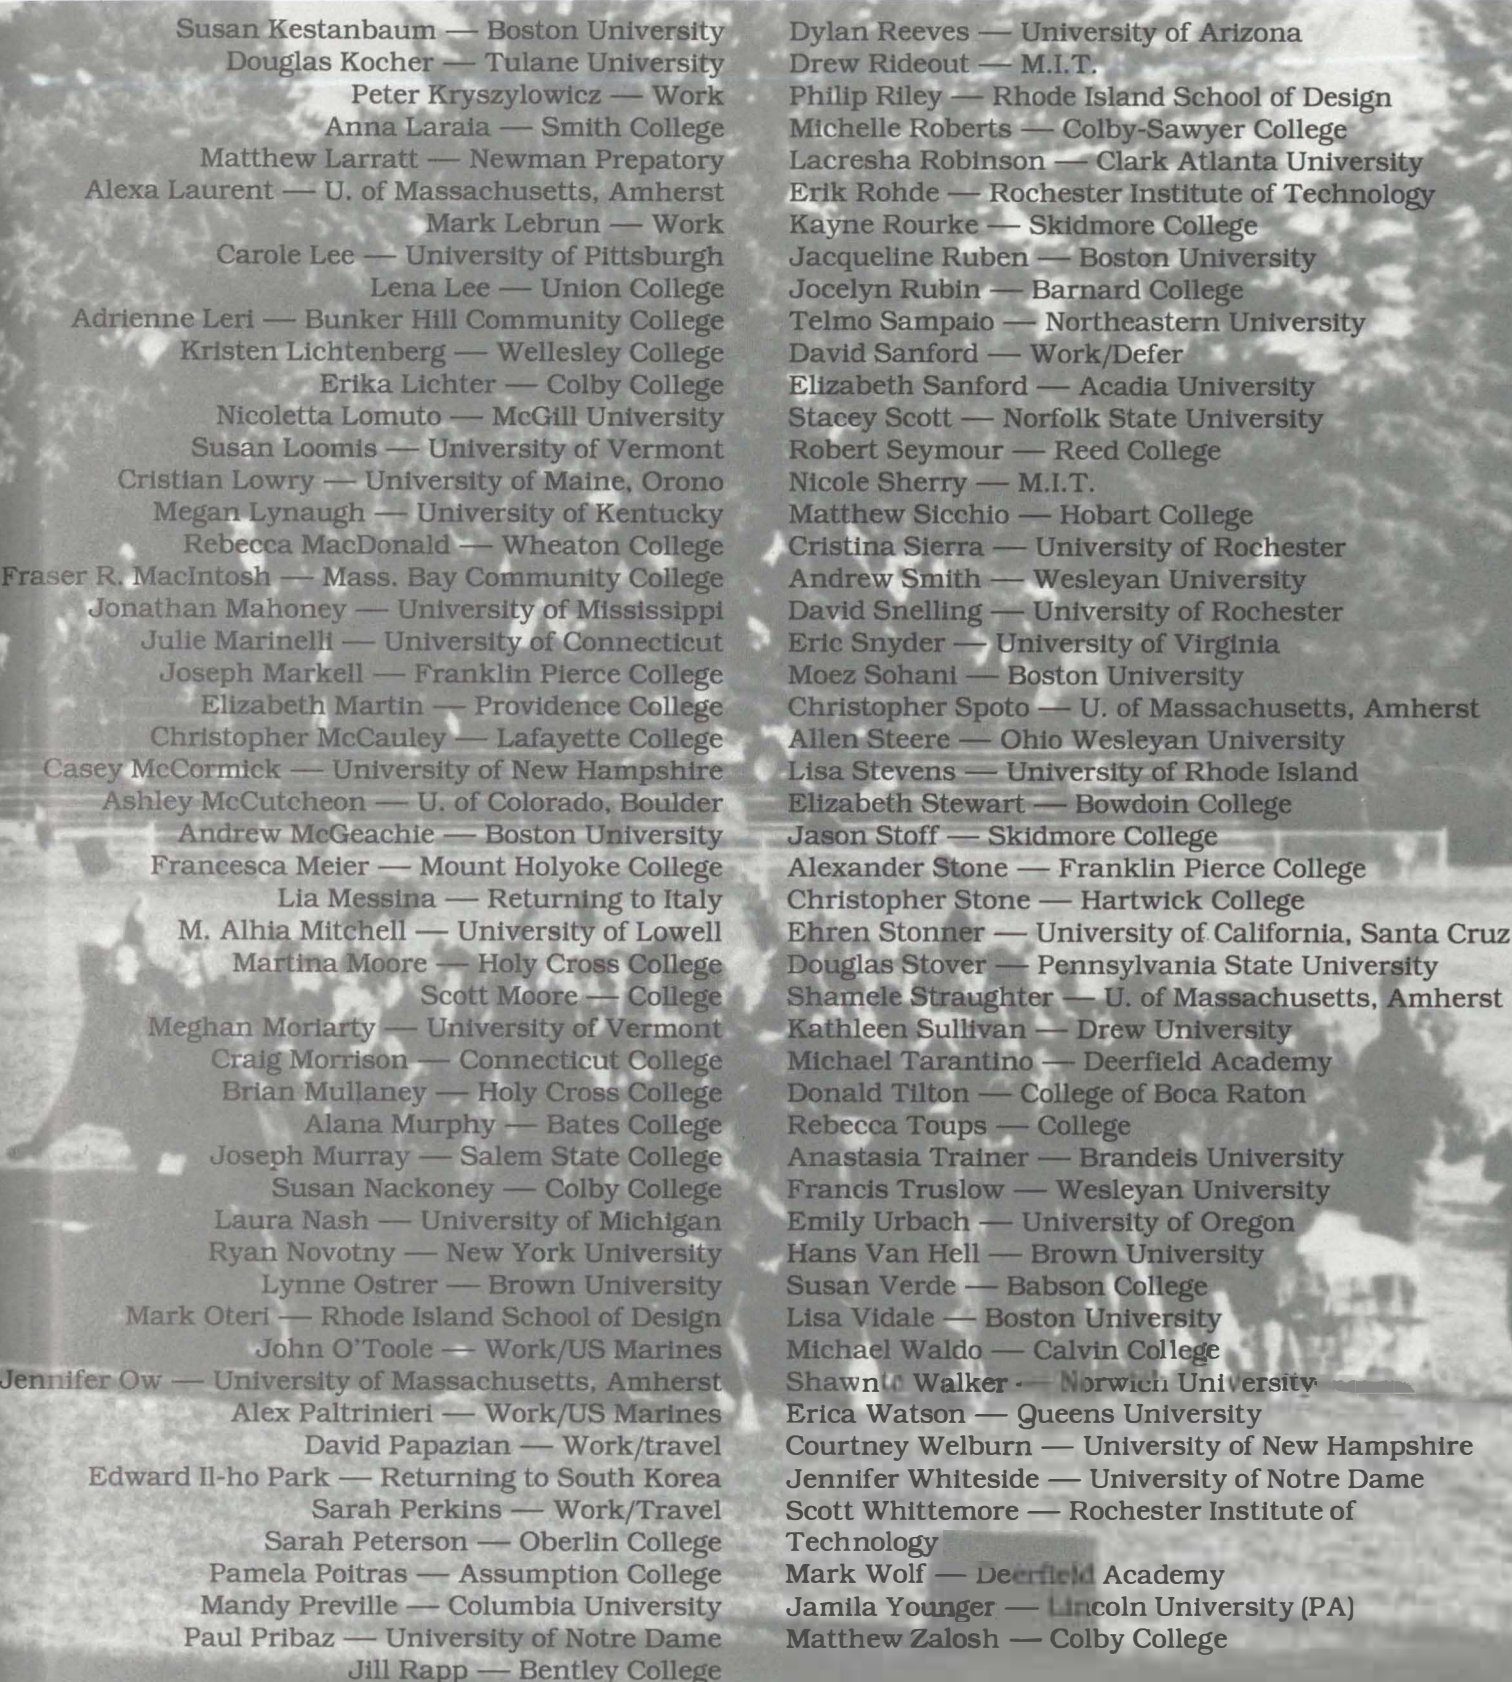

I see a tall, handsome man with . . . I'd better stop, you're drooling on my cards. (Jen Whiteside)

M MAKING WAVES

We are the third time State Champions. In the beginning it was our goal, and now it is a reality . . . and haven't we had fun? Remember the time Cassin made a birthday cake, and as we were doing our daily dry-land workout, Pam happened to turn around and step right into it? What about the food fight that flourished right after that! And can't you hear Bill saying, "Ladies, get in the water, NOW!!" Even with all those minutes spent gossiping on the deck, we still managed to do well, especially our Globe All Scholastics — Britt Griener, Martina Moore, Jocelyn Rubin and Kim Whitman.

HAVING A BALL

The W.B.V.S.T. had another winning season. Under the strong leadership of captains, Mark Wolf, Gene Echard, and Matt Sicchio, the team got off to a flying start with wins against Norwood, Dedham, and Braintree. A period of inconsistency midway through the season, caused a series of heart breaking losses which kept the Raiders from any post season play. However, the team strove to get back on track, and with the skillful coaching of Peter Loiter, the Raiders became one of the most competitive teams in the Bay State League. Thank you to our seniors for making each and every practice an enjoyable one.

F IELD OF DREAMS

Invincible. Believe. Together. These were words spoken with pride when the Wellesley Field Hockey team was under discussion, and the words were not spoken lightly. The Wellesley Raiders gained momentum early in the season with 5 shutouts before suffering their only loss. Walpole may have been victorious that day, but Wellesley gained revenge when the Raiders ruined Walpole's 15-0 record by defeating them in a dramatic late season game. Under the direction of Coach Molonea, the team mastered a new formation and went on to become Division 2 North Sectional Semifinalists.

Maybe the golf team wasn't up to par during the Brockton game — but it wasn't worth getting "teed off" about. After all, the close match with Framingham North kept the possibility of a win within the realm of hope. Our crew won't be heading for Augusta or Hilton Head this year — but give them time. Coach Hamilton has faith.

MARATHON MEN

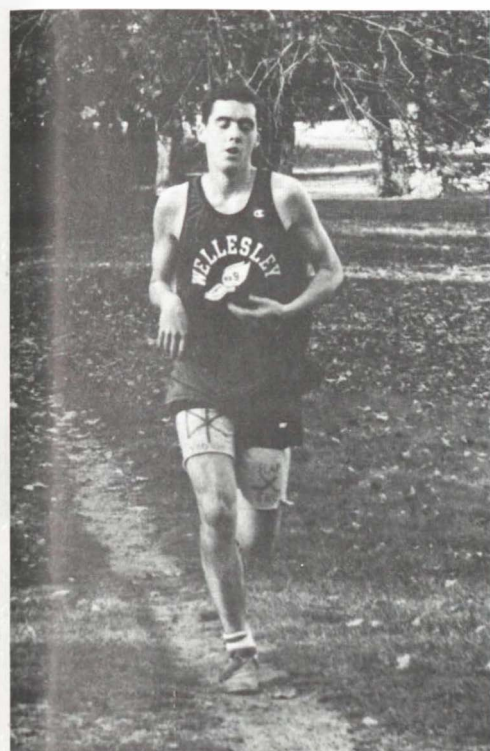

This year's top runners were younger athletes such as Andy Mulkerin and Chris Reese. Reese received the Athlete of the Week title in early September. Many sophomores, including Carl Nilsson and Jon Peters, helped the team to improve greatly. They were boosted by seasoned veteran seniors, Craig Morrison, Chris Lowry, and Drew Rideout.

NET RESULTS

This year the girls' volleyball team went further than any other volleyball team in W.H.S. history. Thanks to power hitters, L. Cloonan, E. Hurley, T. Benoit, K. Azzarello, D. Cunningham, S. Peterson and L. Capobianco, the Raiders made it to the sectional finals and finished with a record of 15-6. Such a feat couldn't have been accomplished without the help of the setters. Since the J.V. and the newly formed freshman teams worked hard and successfully, the depth of the Varsity team seems well ensured for next year. At the end of this season the girls were sporting not only scarlet letters, but also team windbreakers which were richly deserved.

SOUND AND FURY

When the Coach's Tale was told, there was a Delicate Balance — 5 wins and 5 losses. The strong win against Framingham North in the season's opener boded well for the Raiders, but the momentum wasn't maintained. With 5 losses in the next six games, the team seemed to be "tilting at windmills." However, there was something about Framingham that brought out the fighting spirit, for the game against South was a complete rout and turned the rest of the season into a victorious one.

S PLENDOR on the GRASS

They came, they saw, and they all but conquered — all but Newton North in the Division 1 South Sectional Finals. The one goal difference was heartbreaking, but the girls had given Wellesley an incredibly exciting season. Norwood and Milton wondered why they even bothered to take the field against the Raiders because each town had to play Wellesley twice and neither was able to score a single point. Brookline and Braintree could sympathize because they couldn't manage to get on the scoreboard either. Captains Ellie Stewart and Meg Moriarty were justifiably proud of their team.

P OMPONS AND PYRAMIDS

The pompon girls had a great time cheering at the basketball games as well as being in a competition. They were under the leadership and guidance of coach, Miss Ritter. Senior Stephanie Hoffman was very helpful in teaching some of the cheers to the members of the squad. The group consisted of underclassmen, so they won't be losing any seniors this year. They all had fun learning the cheers and working together to do some of the tough flips and pyramids.

Girls' track captains, A. Emilfork and L. Vidale, led their team to a successful individual season. Emilfork and 'Speedo' Amorosino went on to the All-State Meet. P. Poitras, A. Tryon and A. Pribaz were also great assets to the team.

C. Morrison, J. Castilla and M. Aroian, captains for the boys, led them to one important victory. Morrison, Castilla and D. Hughes went on to the All-State Meet.

PUMP IT UP!

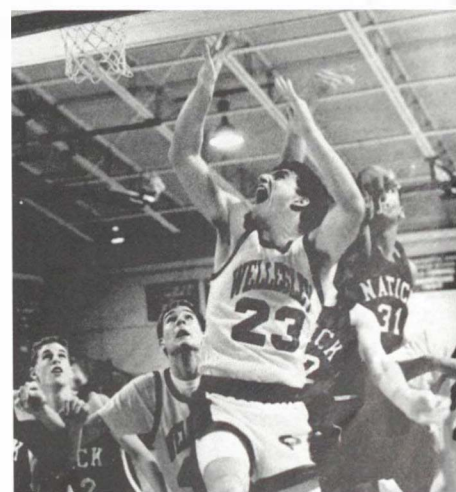

The Wellesley High boys' basketball team had a very disappointing season, but under the strong leadership of senior captains, Joe Hallet and Lamont Belcher, the Raiders played every game with great intensity. Although the Raiders only managed three wins, they made every game an exciting one. Many of the losses were close games until the closing minutes. The highlight of the season was a two point victory over Norwood. The future looks bright for Raider hoops as eight lettermen will return.

H OOPSTERS

Even though new coach, Mr. Heller, had previously coached the Freshman team, the retirement of Mr. Fay altered the winning formula of the hardwood girls. The team spent many hours on the floor in preparation for the season, but basic drills seemed to slow down this talented group. More than enough spirit abounded, so the girls helped the guys get pumped for their games.

Next year's squad will sorely miss the five graduating seniors, Amy Fitzgibbons, Lynn Cloonan, Cassin Janik, Sue Loomis, and Martina Moore, but can look forward to future college recruit, Emma Hurley.

WRESTLEMANIA

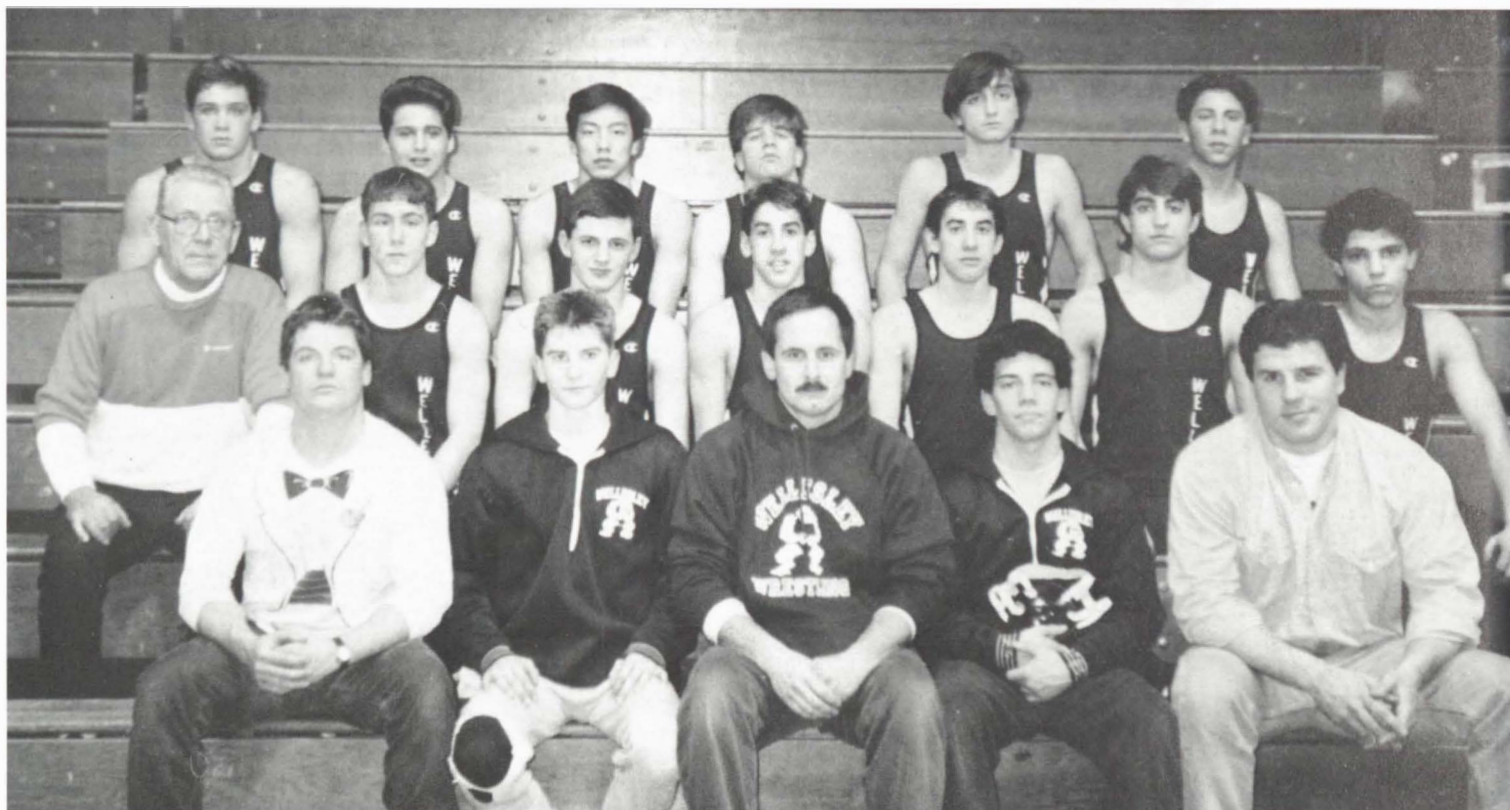

Under captains Drew Rideout and Tony DeMambro and coaches Dave Paltrineri, Andrew Morgan, and Chris Reggio, Wellesley Wrestling had its best season in many years. The team's 8 consecutive wins, and a 5th place finish in the States were truly outstanding. Individual performances were highlighted by Drew Rideout, Wellesley's first state champ since 1979. Sark Renjilian-Burgy and Tony DeMambro also made it to the state finals, and Kris Kahn placed 6th. Sectional place winners included Pete Diamond (3rd), Luke Renjilian-Burgy (5th), and Matt Sutin (6th).

I N NEED OF A LIFT

The Ski Team had an amazing season thanks to the venerable schussers and some fresh faces. The four captains, Erika Lichter, Lisa Kerchner, Alex DeMambro and Mehdy Rad, led the team in preseason until new coach, Mrs. Poitras, took over. Even though she refused to don skis, she won the hearts of her team without leading by example. The girls' downhill team came second in the Bay State League, which qualified them for states. At states, the girls finished an amazing thirteenth. Wellesley found itself out of its league, however, as few had raced the Giant Slalom and Slalom events. Alex DeMambro and Travis Cundiff competed in the Individual division for the boys, while Tracey Jolis represented Wellesley in the girl's Individual division.

S LAP SHOT

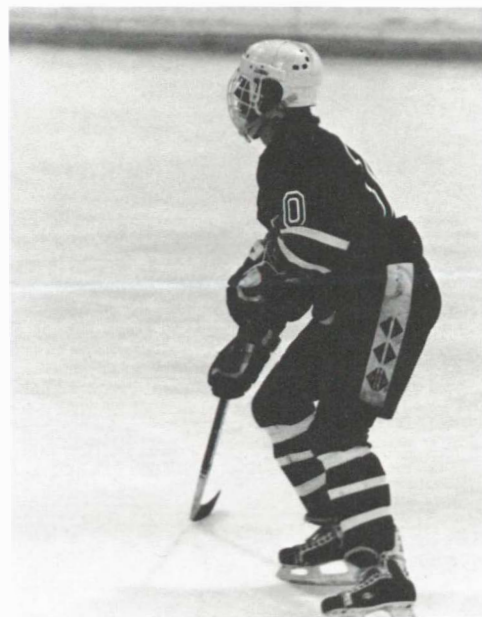

The hiring of new coach, Jack Horack, brought hope for Wellesley hockey. Although the record may not have been impressive, the season was successful. Early in the competition, a three year losing streak was broken when the Raiders beat Dedham. This was the only victory for the team, although senior goalie, Joe Murray, kept the team in the game no matter how many goals were fired at his net.

A DELICATE BALANCE

The Gymnastics' team had a wonderful season, despite some of the injuries. Co-captain Karen DeMarco injured her ankle at the outset, but after it healed, she was going strong. The other co-captain, Laura Nash, did well, and both leaders gave lots of encouragement to their team. Kristen Garni was called upon to fill in when other teammates were injured, and usually ended up doing two or three events per meet. All of the seniors will be missed, but the team has the strength of Nicole Rubin, Kristen Delmonico, and many other talented underclassmen, who should guarantee success in future years.

A STROKE ABOVE THE REST

The Boys' Swim Team finished the regular season undefeated, and for the third time in as many years, they were Bay State League champions. The accomplishments of this team, which also included a fourth at Sectionals, and fourteenth at States, are an accurate reflection of the dedication of its swimmers and the popularity of Coach Hunter Adams, who finished second in the voting for Coach of the Year. Captains, Aaron Chaisson, Jim Desimone, and Adam Horst, did their best to keep the team under control. Also memorable were the exploits of the team on their frequent road trips, and none will ever forget the 'hairless' sensation.

THE NATURALS

While the baseball team started off the year rather slowly with a series of losses, all players took heart in the fact that the games remained close for most of the contests. The Raiders played with pride and determination every inning of each game. The strong arms of Mac Hay and Allen Steere were blowing the ball by unsuspecting batters while Aaron Chaisson controlled the action behind the plate. The power hitting of Brian Mullaney, along with the speed of Erik Rohde and Matt Sicchio, tormented BSL pitchers throughout the year. Coach Scafati, despite a rare losing season, has high hopes for next year's squad. With nine underclassmen returning, the Raiders will almost certainly regain that winning tradition.

A BIG HIT

Tri-captains Karen DeMarco, Lynne Ostrer and Martina Moore helped the team bring about a very successful season. Pitchers, Julie Gordon and Dee Cunningham, found it difficult to follow in Lisa Moore's footsteps, but pursued the task and did an excellent job. Other returning players, including Emily Senecal and Athlete of the Week, Anna Tryon, were all as strong as ever. There were many newcomers who responded to Mr. Heller's coaching and proved to be great assets to the team. Manager, Ro Simmons, kept an accurate account of all the wins.

QUICK STICKS

The girls' lacrosse team was fortunate enough to garner six fresh and talented people this year. The exodus of seniors last season left a huge hole that had many people worried but the underclassmen filled it admirably. Captains Meg Moriarty, Katie Berkery and Tory Neher, took charge of the team on and off the field. Their leadership inspired the team to many victories, though not quite enough to qualify them for tournament play.

PRESSING THE CREASE

The success of Boys' Lacrosse this year may herald the beginning of a new era at Wellesley High as it becomes a varsity sport next year. Captains, Biz Stone and Elliot Cundiff helped to secure many wins against schools with established programs. The team will lose only four seniors: Matt Cavaliero, Dylan Reeves, Doug Kocher and Cundiff, and the strong core of juniors, including high scorer Jon Gamble, promises future success.

KINGS OF COURTS

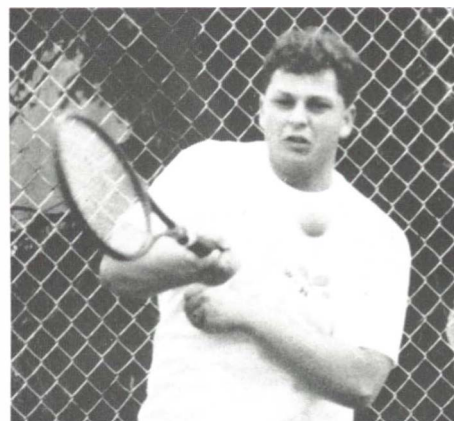

The boys' tennis team had an incredible season. They returned to the glory of years past, winning the Herget Division crown with a 16-3 regular season record. Led by Bay State All-Stars, Eric Snyder and Maurice Aymard, their season was highlighted by the first win over Framingham North in seven years. G ONE WITH THE WIND

After a great second place at States in 1990, Wellesley Sailing had high hopes in 1991. Things looked promising with skippers Eric and Gregg Furie and Bill D. Botts. Botts was forced to leave due to an injury, so freshman Ryan Quinn stepped forward and filled the position well. Experienced sailors, S. Bryant, F. Emilfork and S. Nackoney, and beginning sailors A. Horst, T. Sampaio and D. DeBrockere, all performed exceedingly well in the dual meets. The team competed in the state championships and finished fourth.

SMASHING SUCCESS

The 1991 Boys' Volleyball Team had a very successful season thanks to the great coaching of Shawn Petty. The team, started only two years ago in Wellesley, was the youngest in the league, but has matured into one of the most talented groups around. With the leadership of Ehren Stonner and Dave Snelling, the power hitting of Rick Reed, the magnificence of Peter 'Tall' Harwood, the Iceman, Haukur Thorgilsson and, of course, the rise of Alex Demambro, the team was able to accomplish the goals that it set for itself.

During the school year, Ms. Dixon, Ms. Copell and the rest of the yearbook staff worked very hard in and out of school to assemble this publication that would not only remind you of the sports and activities on campus, but also of the local and global events that affected us all.

Senior editors, Lisa Kerchner and Cassin Janik did their utmost to keep the staff enthusiastic and ready for deadlines. Paul Pribaz had the enormous task of designing every page on computer before it was sent to be published. Working with the advisors, they produced an excellent book.

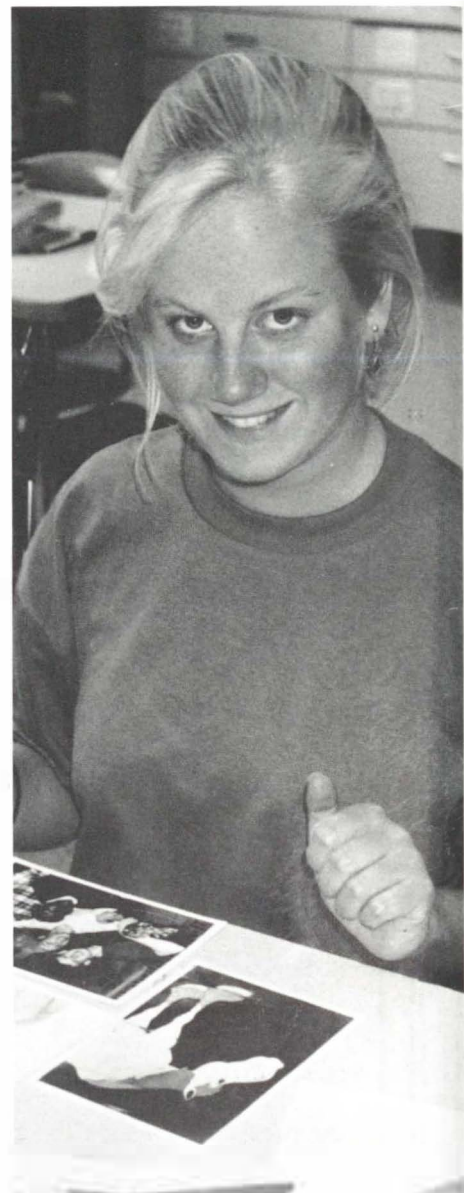

Tragedy befell the school and community when one of its best teachers passed away in the spring. Miss Sue Copell worked tirelessly with the yearbook for a number of years and always stressed the importance of excellence in a publication such as this.

Last year, a new type of yearbook was introduced to the high school. The Video Yearbook captures a set of feelings on film that allow students to relive important events and occasions from their high school years. The excitement, surprise, disappointment and joy are all felt when the film is replayed.

With the help of Ms. Dixon and Ms. Copell, students are trained to operate the video camera and select appropriate passages of film. Andrea Pribaz and Ben Tavel were the students in charge of most aspects of the video yearbook and both worked very hard to capture important events, often traveling to different towns to set up their tripods.

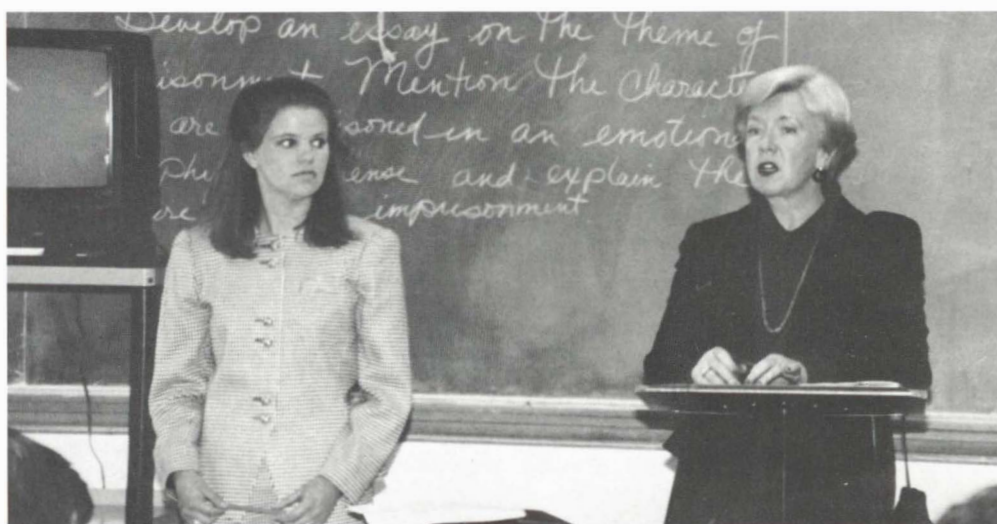

After months of filming and careful editing, the video yearbook is one giant memory that lasts forever.

Ben, we're not used to you on this side of the camera.

Andrea, what would we do without you?

Hot ticket, if you could do that the video would be awesome!

Video Yearbook

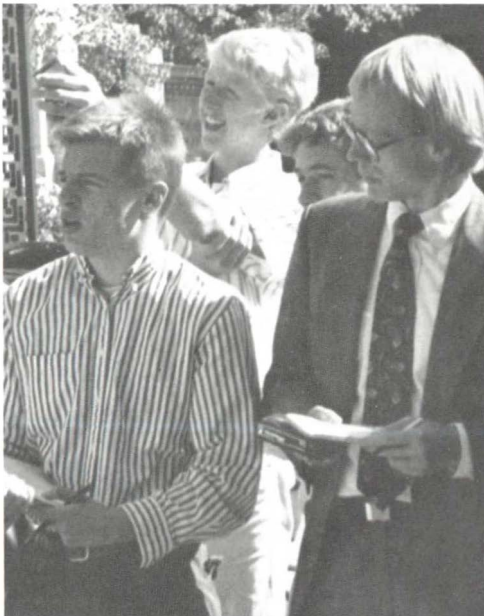

The Video Yearbook Staff.

The Bradford staff consisted mostly of juniors and sophomores. Co-editors Alan Zibel and John 'Jake' Dinwoody, assisted by Features Editor Ted Mulkerin and Alicia Talanian, produced 6 spectacular issues, two of which contained exclusive interviews with major political figures.

The Bradford interviewed John Silber and had an informal interview with William Weld as he ran to his car.

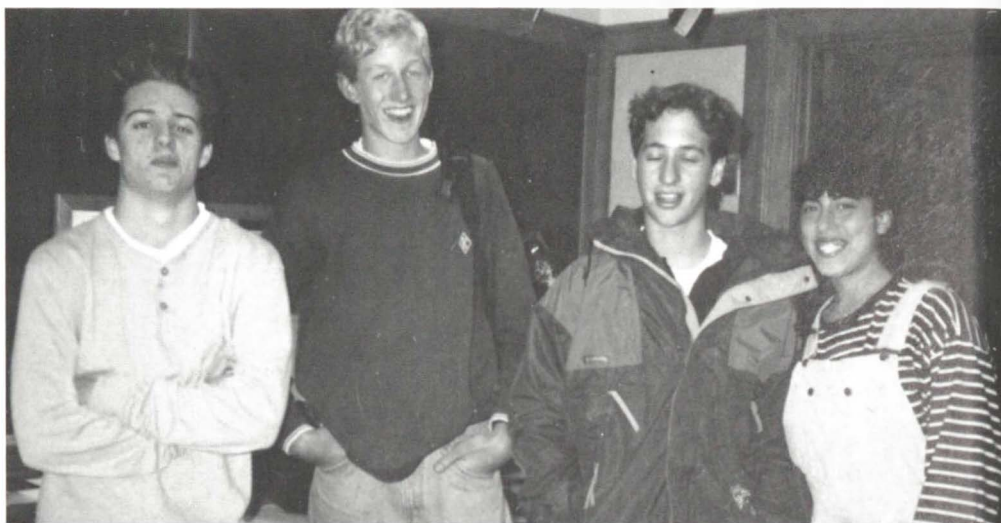

The second half of the year saw Ted and photographer Scott Whittemore in the middle of a riot while covering former KKK leader, Senator David Duke's speech in Boston. Ted was the only Boston journalist to get an interview with Duke during his brief appearance. Trying to edge out photographers from CNN, Scott was on scene as demonstrators fought in the balcony.

The Drama Club catered to the two branches of the stage: the technical and the theatrical. Senior techies, Alex Stone and Bob Calzini joined actors Tim Dowling, Seth Bloom, Martha Elliot, Lisa Glover, Matt Flanagan, Jason Yaitanes, and many others, to put on four productions this year. They included a musical, Festival play, spring play, and a student directed play.

We are proud to be members of SADD!

Thirty students participated in SADD, which had Mr. Levin as its advisor. Officers were C. Janik, S. Hoffman, N. Sherry, E. Rohde and L. Vidale. SADD's major event was Alcohol Awareness Week, which was financed by a tuxedo raffle. Former NBA player, Norm Van Lier, and Wellesley College's Project Walt team were among those who brought SADD's message to Wellesley.

Key Club was very active this year with 45 participants. They sponsored many activities including a freshman cookout before school began, a senior citizens' Thanksgiving luncheon, a Sunday Family Hay Ride, and a Wellesley Tennis Association dinner. A concession stand at football games was the main source of money to support these events. Other profits from the fund-raisers went to UNICEF, Globe Santa, the Cancer Society, and a fund for David Calder. Members attended an Annual Convention in April along with 1,000 other Key Club members. Wellesley won a 3rd place recognition for achievement. Key Club's success was due to officers Alicia Talanian, Tim Dowling, Doris Celli, Larry Kaplan, and Matt Sutin and great group members.

Dressed for success!

This year, the National Honor Society inducted 65 new members, the largest total ever here at Wellesley High School. Those selected for this organization represent the students who have fully demonstrated the qualities of leadership, service, commitment and character within the curriculum and the community. Under the guidance of advisor Paul Brown, the society hopes to expand activities and its various fund-raisers which already include a series of trips to a nursing home, a child's fair at the annual Rotary pancake breakfast and a car wash. It is evident that this elite group of students will continue to support our school in various ways and to promote the welfare of the community as a whole.

I'd like to thank all the people who made this possible (Eric).

Only a few are fit enough to be members of Acadec. Hours of grueling practice and much sustenance paid off because when it came time for the state meet, Wellesley was up there with the best. The team finished in sixth place in the state. Although Drew Rideout, state wrestling champion, was busy in the New England Wrestling Meet and Ken Keating was acting in the State Drama Festival, the rest of the team was there and ready. Thanks to the mother of all Acadec members, Mrs. McCoy, individuals Telmo Sampaio received a gold in Math and a bronze in science, captain Paul Pribaz received a gold in history and Marni Silverstein garnered a silver medal in grammar and literature.

In the qualifying round, Jason Eastman excelled, scoring the highest of any decathlete in his division. Good luck to the team!

President, Amy Fitzgibbons, was pleased with the direction Student Council took this year. The accent was on community service and a booklet was organized for students giving ways to offer such services. Other activities included Seminar Day, the student caucus and the paper recycling program.

Seth and Melissa were always looking for ways to improve the school.

For the students who spent a week in Washington, D.C. this year, government will never be the same again. Whether questioning a state representative, debating issues with students from all over the country or listening to experts discuss their fields, the power of the people is a concept that is well understood. Amy Fitzgibbons, Susan Nackoney, Lynne Ostrer, Aaron Chaisson, Jon Dinwoody, Ryan Novotny, Dave Owen, Paul Pribaz and William Shockley participated in this exciting and intensive program.

Of course, the two days of freedom were the most popular. One was spent exploring Capitol Hill while the other was a free day, which most used to visit the Smithsonian, Georgetown and shopping districts.

Special thanks to Mr. Kervan, who came with the students, but participated in a teachers' program.

I was in Australia for eight weeks last summer on the Outdoor Education program.

For the first six weeks I lived with a family in Brisbane and went to school. For the last two weeks, I was in Sydney with all the other American AFS students hiking and canoeing and having a real blast. I look forward to returning to Australia one day.

American

Lia Messina

It was the most exciting year of my life. I did all that I always dreamed of doing! I traveled through the U.S.A. with my family, the Boyle's. I discovered a different world and I met a lot of people and made a lot of friends. Thanks to my family and AFS, I will never forget this awesome year.

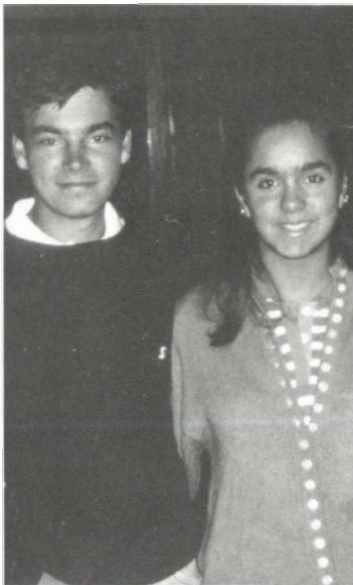

Lisa Kerchner

My trip last summer to Japan was an experience I will never forget. I lived for ten weeks in Osaka, Japan with a Japanese family. For the first four weeks I went to school. My family took me to Kyoto, Koba, Nara, Hiroshima, the ocean and we even climbed Mt. Fuji. I felt very close to my Japanese family and hope someday I can return to Japan.

Kristen Garni

During my AFS experience I stayed in Switzerland with a young couple. I spent the first week at a language camp learning German. For the next five weeks I stayed with my host family. I became very independent because I had no host brothers or sisters. I did lots of traveling and sightseeing within Switzerland, Germany and Italy.

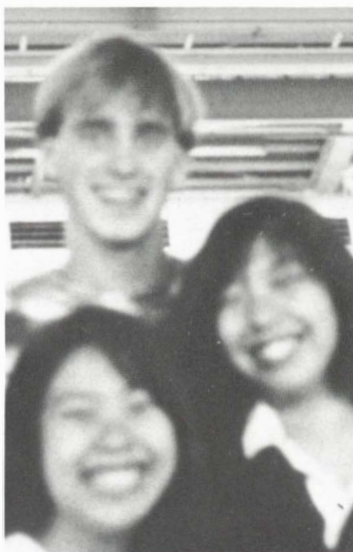

Hans Van Hell

I spent the seven weeks of the homestay program in Cartago, Costa Rica. During the first two weeks of my trip, my family took me to several beaches, parks, volcanoes, cities and villages. Then I went to school with my host brother for five weeks. I was never bored because I was surrounded by many things to do and people to see.

Lisa Glover

Last summer I spent seven weeks on a small farm in Finland. The Finnish summer was beautiful and the food was delicious. I was really impressed by the beauty of the landscape and how clean everything was — even the cities. After my homestay, I travelled by bus to the USSR with other AFSers, and stayed for four days exploring Leningrad.

Andy Burt

Last summer I lived for ten weeks in Osaka, Japan with my host family, the Watanabe's. Luckily, my sister, Atsuko spoke English well. For the first half of my summer I commuted into Osaka and attended intense Japanese classes. The second half of my summer was spent vacationing with my family and going out at night with my sister and friends.

Alana Murphy

I went to Greece with the cultural program. I lived with 30 teenagers in a monastery, repairing the walls, floors and gardens. We were there for two weeks. For one month, I then lived with a family. I had two younger sisters. We lived in their summer home in the mountains, but drove every day to the Aegean Sea to swim.

Hannah Boyle

I spent the summer in France. For the first two weeks I was in language camp studying French and visiting cultural sights. I spent the last five weeks with my French family: my parents, brother Marc, and three sisters Claire, Alice and Lawrence. I had a wonderful time with them, hiking in the Pyrenees Mts. and travelling all over southwestern France.

Look at the pretty colors!

German Club officers with Frau Stueart

The German Club was as strong as ever; over 40 students participated. President J. Diliberto and officers, B. Greineder, K. Hallor and E. Riley, along with Frau Stueart, have made for this group's infectious enthusiasm. Volleyball games against other language clubs were among the popular events. The fourth year students also performed, "Die Prinzessin auf Die Erbse."

For the eighth time since 1983, Wellesley High participated in an exchange with the Thomas-Mann Gymnasium in Munich, Germany.

During their stay, the touring students went on an overnight mountain hike, visited historic sites, and participated in many memorable activities. They were the first Wellesley exchange group to view the dismantled Berlin Wall.

Eight students went on the Costa Rican exchange this year: Cynthia Ahlgren, Emily Cook, Eli Pickett, Jill Rapp, Ellie Stewart, Erica Watson and Ambrose Cohen. They enjoyed many exciting trips and tours, which included a boat ride to the beautiful Tortuga Island. Unfortunately, the group felt the tremors of an earthquake during their stay, but were luckily away from its center.

This year the Wellesley High School French Club hosted eight French students, for three weeks. Unfortunately, France could not reciprocate, as there were not enough Wellesley High students to travel in the other direction. Nonetheless, the French students were shown the sights and had many activities organized for them. They were able to take a walking tour of Boston, see a Red Sox game and frequent many fine stores.

Although somewhat clandestine this year, the Latin Club remained active and organized a number of activities. Under the fearless leadership of Mr. Esposito, the Latin Club includes all scholars of Latin, whether they like it or not, and encourages a deeper understanding of the Roman culture and its profound effect upon our daily lives. A lavish banquet was well attended and served to remind us all that it is impossible to escape Latin ... not that any would want to.

The Russian babes.

Ten students had the opportunity to spend three weeks in the Soviet Union. The group stayed with host families in Moscow for five days, and then in Leningrad for two weeks. Among the attractions that the group visited were the Kremlin, Red Square, the Hermitage, Peter & Paul's Fortress, the Pyramid and McDonald's. The students discovered many differences in lifestyles between our two cultures, but grew to appreciate the genuine Russian hospitality.

Oh, The Places You'll Go!

Congratulations! Today is your day. You're off to great places! You're off and away. You have brains in your head. You have feet in your shoes. You can steer yourself any direction you choose. You're on your own. And you know what you know. And YOU are the guy who'll decide where to go.

You'll look up and down streets. Look 'em over with care. About some you will say, "I don't choose to go there." With your head full of brains and your shoes full of feet you're too smart to go down any not so good street. And you may not find any you'll want to go down. In that case, of course, you'll head straight out of town. It's "opener," things can happen and frequently do, to people as brainy and footsy as you. And when things start to happen don't worry. Don't stew. Just go right along. You'll start happening too. OH! THE PLACES YOU'LL GO!

You'll be on your way up! You'll be seeing great sights! You'll join the high fliers who soar up to high heights. You won't lag behind, because you'll have the speed. You'll pass the whole gang and you'll soon take the lead. Wherever you fly, you'll be the best of the best. Wherever you go, you will top all the rest.

Except when you don't. Because, sometimes, you won't. I'm sorry to say so but sadly, it's true that Bangups and Hangups can happen to you. You can get all hung up in a prickly perch. Somehow you'll escape. You'll find the bright places where Boom Bands are playing. Once more you'll ride high! Ready for anything under the sky. Ready because you're that kind of a guy!

Oh!, the places you'll go. There is fun to be done! There are points to be scored. There are games to be won. And the magical things you can do with that ball will make you the winningest winner of all. Fame! You'll be famous as famous can be, with the whole world watching you win on T.V.

Except when they don't. Because sometimes they won't. I'm afraid that sometimes you'll play lonely games too. Games you can't win 'cause you'll play against you.

You'll get mixed up, of course, as you already know. You'll get mixed up with many strange birds as you go. So be sure when you step, step with care and great tact and remember that life's a Great Balancing Act. Just never forget to be dextrous and deft. And never mix the right foot up with your left. And will you succeed?

Yes! You will, indeed (9 and 3/4% guaranteed). KID, YOU'LL MOVE MOUNTAINS! You're off to Great Places Today is your day! Your mountain is waiting. So . . . get on your way!

Good Luck and Good Bye.
